Baylor coach heads up vendors

By LYNN ROSSI
Jim Haller, Baylor's assistant basketball coach, keeps busy during football season by selling popcorn, peanuts, cold drinks, sandwiches, chili dogs, pickles, and even cotton candy at home games.
Haller is in charge of concession stands and 260 vendors at Baylor Stadium, according to The Baylor Lariat.
The 18 concession stands in the stadium broke records Sept. 11 at the Baylor-Houston game when 40,000 cold drinks requiring 15 tons of ice were sold.
Imagine an order this size.

At an average game, approximately 4,000 chili dogs, 1,500 sandwiches, 5,000 sacks of peanuts, and 4,000 boxes of popcorn are sold.
To warn the Aggie fans making that long trek to Arkansas this weekend, Haller said the Razorback fans were the "biggest eating and drinking, and I might add, the loudest fans."

Two-bit test fails

Psychology students of the University of Texas at Arlington tried a two-bit experiment last week, according to The Shorthorn.

Dorm hours posted

The University of Houston is the only major Texas university that enforces a visitation policy for female dormitory residents and not for male residents, according to The Cougar.

North Moody Towers and Bates Hall have posted schedules for visitation, but the all-male and coed dorms on campus have no visitation restrictions.

The visitation hours of the two dorms are similar to those imposed by Texas A&M and other universities. However, on this and other campuses, the policies apply equally to both male and female dorms.

The legality of the UofH policy is presently being questioned, although no suits have yet been filed.

UT fire breaks out

More than 300 women fled into the street Monday afternoon when a fire broke out in the lobby of Kinsolving Dorm on the University of Texas campus, according to a report in The Daily Texan.

Painters at the University said while they were removing varnish in the concession room of the lobby, a fire flared up out of an electrical outlet.

No one was injured and only moderate fire and smoke damage were reported.

Fowler women to help work concessions, guard bonfire

Guard duty for Fowler residents? Starting this weekend there will be guard duty for some.
Susan Hufsmann, bonfire chief for Fowler Hall, is signing up any interested women to work either guard duty or in the concession stand at the stacking area behind Duncan Dining Hall.
Guard fires will be set up around the perimeter of the stack.
"If the people who come to try to start the fire early, see a lot of people out there, they might get discouraged. The girls will be right out there next to the guys," Hufsmann said.

Guarding of the stack around the clock will begin next week with some girls going out there at 4 a.m.," she said.
A concession stand will be placed at the stacking area also starting this weekend with funds going to the Bonfire Committee.
"We will sell hot dogs, soft drinks, candy and tobacco to the stacking crew and to any spectators gathered," Hufsmann said.
"The Bonfire Committee is made up of students, faculty, and administrative members to do the administrative work for the bonfire," said

Mark Pool, the head bonfire chief for the civilian students.
With the money from the stand and money that is donated by individual dorms, the committee finances what is needed for the work on the stack, he said.
The members of the faculty and administration on the committee include John Koldus, Gary Halter, and Jerry Mainord. The students on the committee include Mark Pool, the yell leaders and the corps bonfire chiefs.

MSC Arts Committee to publish students' creative writings, art

Students with hopes of literary or photographic futures now have a chance to get their works into print.
A literary magazine is being assembled for publication in the spring of 1977 by the Arts Committee of the Memorial Student Center.
The magazine will be made up of fiction, poetry, photography, and art by A&M students. Each writer may submit as many as six poems and three fictional works. All magazine entries will be evaluated and given approval for publication by a student literary board to be selected by the Arts Committee.
All entries must be submitted to the English Department, Room 511 of the Harrington Center by Feb. 1, 1977. Complete rules for submitting zengieftries, including the form that submissions should follow, are available in Memorial Student Center 216.

More information is available from Ken Dimnack, Arts Committee chairman, or Susie Turner, literary chairman for the Arts Committee, at 845-1515.

Bryan couple gives candy to state school

For the past 13 years, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Robinette of Bryan have sent Christmas candy to the mentally retarded children at Austin State School.
At Christmas, the candy is distributed among approximately 1,000 children who remain in the dorms during the holidays.
Donations for this candy may be made out to "Christmas Candy-Retarded Children-State School" and be mailed to the University National Bank in College Station in care of John Birkner, or to the Robinettes, Route 5, Box 1180, Bryan.
