Pre-med student wins Thomas Mayo prize

Kerri Lynn Kernan of Amarillo has won the Thomas F. Mayo Prize, declaring her the outstanding writer enrolled in freshman English at Texas A&M University.

Kernan, an 18-year-old pre-med student, was first recipient of the $100 prize, awarded on the basis of submitted essays and honoring a longtime teacher, college librarian and head of English at Texas A&M.

The Tascosa High School graduate took the death of her brother as a topic for her winning entry, recalled her English 103 teacher, Verna Faye Hartfiel.

Hartfiel said, "I'm elated one of my students won the first Mayo Prize, I feel like I really did something, although in this case Kerri brought almost all of it with her."

Kernan was named outstanding writer enrolled in English 103 and 104, a combined enrollment of 4,250 Aggies, according to freshman English director Dr. Forrest Burt.

Chairman of the Mayo Prize committee is Dr. R. W. Barzak, associate English professor.

Dr. David H. Stewart, head of English, awarded the prize and a congratulatory document on Kernan.
