Shelby proud of Ag game

Houston's victory Saturday halts home winning streak

By PAUL ARNETT
Battalion Sports Editor

Even the animosity of G. Rollie White Coliseum didn't scare the Houston Cougars last Saturday as they powered past the Texas Aggies 78-71. The victory halted A&M's home win streak at 19.

"They're that good," coach Shelby Metcalf said of Houston after the game. "We played real hard, and I'm proud of our guy's performance."

"All four of our freshman played well. Pederson keeps improving all the time. They are all playing so hard and playing above everyone's expectations."

The Aggies stayed close to the Cougars throughout the contest. Houston appeared to have it won on numerous occasions, yet A&M kept coming back.

"A&M played great and were really tough on the boards," Houston coach Guy Lewis said. "Shelby has done a great job with them since we saw them in the Houston Tournament last December."

The game was a seesaw affair from the outset. It was late in the first half before Houston managed to move out to a big lead. The two principle men in the Houston surge were Mark Trammel, and the outstanding Otis Birdsong. "Birdsong is a great ball player," Metcalf said. "We need the Birdsongs to help make our conference stronger."

Birdsong finished the afternoon with 28 points. The senior from Houston hit 12 out of 18 from the field and four out of seven from the foul line. His play brought lavish praise from his coach.

"Otis is a great ball player," Lewis said. "He played a great ball game today. Every time we needed a big basket, Otis was the one we got it from."

The amazing thing about him though is that he can score 30 points and you never would know it. He doesn't score in spurts, but in a consistent manner coaches like to see."

Trammel also had a good game. He was the second leading scorer behind Birdsong for Houston nailing home 14 points. The leaper from Cougarland had no problem shooting over smallish Dave Goff.

Goff played his heart out for the Aggies, but just couldn't guard Trammel. Dave had seven assists in leading the Aggie attack, while adding six points.

The key player for the Aggies was Steve Jones. Jones had 24 points and six rebounds. The senior also guarded Otis Birdsong and did an admirable job before fouling Jones received a handshake and efforts by none other than the himself.

"Steve did a good job for Metcalf said. "He has worked hard for us all season long, definitely going to play in NBA."

Swanson also played well for A&M. Despite a slow start, Swanson managed to score 10 points and grab six rebounds, only part of his game that was ing.

The turning point in the game was midway in the second half. Swanson's man, Charles Thompson scored four field goals in a 10-0 run. Thompson worked his way down low inside against Wally Metcalf, who had been guarding him.

"That hurt us," Metcalf said. "Wally tried to front him and he got away. It was the strategy of the game."

After these baskets Wally moved into a 13 point lead which never relinquished. The final point margin was as close as Aggies ever got.

Women upset San Jacinto after Houston's crushing win

The Texas A&M women's basketball team rebounded from a crushing loss to the University of Houston Saturday, to bounce San Jacinto 71-62.

Karen Muskiet led the Ags with 17 points, followed by Sally Morrisse with 12 points and six rebounds. Margaret Byrne and Cindy Gough had seven rebounds each. The win, the first for the Aggies in the last four games brought their season percentage above .500 again with a 7-6 record. The Ags came close in the 80-75 thriller with Houston behind Gough's 12 points, but inconsistency and poor free throw shooting eventually spelled doom.

Against San Jac the Ags hit 44 per cent from the floor and improved to the same percentage from the line.

"We got into a little bit of trouble," said Aggie coach Don, "but we came around and better on our offense. We were hurting at the line."

The team next meets Prairie View A&M at 5:15 p.m. prior to the men's TCU game on Wednesday and then travel to Houston Thursday for a matchup with Houston State.
