Try to find winning ways

Froggies invade Aggieland

By Paul Arnett
Battalion Sports Editor

It is time for the Texas Aggie basketball team to fall back and regroup. After three tough losses, the team just may have that chance when they entertain the TCU Horned Frogs tonight at 7:30. The Froggies' record in Southwest Conference play is much like their football team...winless. But that record is misleading. TCU has been in many of those contests, yet let victory slip through their fingers in the waning minutes.

One such game in which TCU blew a big lead came against Houston. Leading by as much as 10 points on numerous occasions, the Horned Frogs fell apart in the final minutes and lost 78-74.

The man who led the Horned Frog charge against the Cougars with 39 points was Daryl Braden. Braden is a fine forward who is averaging 16 points and 9.5 rebounds a game. He is shooting a solid 48 per cent from the field and 77 per cent from the foul line.

"Braden is a complete ball player," coach Shelby Metcalf said. "He is one of the best players in the conference."

Another fine performer in the conference, Steve Jones, will have the dubious honor of guarding Braden. Jones has had no easy assignment this year. His last two games, Jones has had to guard Otis Birdsong and Marvin Delph. Having to guard those two superstars should help him against Braden.

Two other men need to shine for the Aggies if they are to defeat TCU. They are Wally Swanson and Willie Foreman.

Swanson has had his problems the last three games. The big man seems to be pressing a little, and therefore, having his troubles. Swanson, normally a good shooter, hit on only three out of ten shots from the field against Arkansas. A&M needs Wally to be playing at his best before it can compete effectively.

Another man the Ags need a good game from is Foreman. Willie scored a team-high 18 points against Arkansas. The stocky forward from Houston hit key baskets from inside, by beating his opponent to the ball. This aggressive play has been an element A&M has needed.

The series has been a close one over the years, with the Ags holding a slight 61-59 advantage. The Aggies defeated the Froggies' each time last season en route to a SWC crown.

The game tonight will not be for the championship, but A&M needs a victory so winning ways can be found again. The Ags need to win every game possible so as to lead in the number five conference chase. Teams finishing in the host the first round of the play-offs. A&M is currently with Baylor for fifth place.

Palmer to play in San Diego

SAN DIEGO — It's been a half dozen years or so since Arnold Palmer has played in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open, this week's stop on the PGA Tour, and for a pretty good reason.

Usually, the San Diego Open has followed the Bob Hope Desert Classic, played at nearby Palm Springs, and it has been Palmer's policy not to play in both California events on successive weeks.

Since he has had a lot more luck winning in Palm Springs, five Hope titles over the years, it's understandable why he has passed up San Diego. Not so this year, which also is the first in the last four that the two events — Williams and Hope — are not being played back-to-back.

And for that reason, plus the fact Palmer wants to play more often this year than last, Arnie leads the charge, however weak these days, this week. It's a big boost for the local sponsors, since Palmer still has the magic that draws people in large numbers.

He played in the Crosby National Pro-Am last week for the first time in three years and that tournament, given a big boost as well by the presence of former president Gerald Ford who played as a team with Palmer, set attendance records that may never be beaten.

Palmer, of course, is the most visible player here this week, but the overall field is one of the strongest in years. It boasts, among others, PGA champ Dave Stockton and Masters champ Ray Floyd.

J. C. Snead, who won here the last two years, is back, of course, as well as Ben Crenshaw, who took three titles a year ago and ranked second only to Jack Nicklaus in money winnings, local hero Gene Littler, Tucson winner Bruce Lietzke and Crosby winner Tom Watson.

U.S. Open champ Jerry Pate had entered but withdrew when his wife Suzie came down with the mumps. British Open champ Johnny Miller is taking the week off.

Pate started the 1977 Tour by winning the Phoenix Open. Lietzke, who won at Tucson two weeks ago, was a late entry here as was Tony Jacklin, runnerup to Watson in the Crosby. Jacklin lost out to Pete Brown here in the 1970 tournament but the way he is playing now, Tony ranks as a favorite.

Watson was near perfect in winning the Crosby and should command a good gallery here. The former Stanford University student won the Crosby with a .4 under par score of 273, a tournament record, and a pretty fine performance anyway you look at it considering the difficulty of the three courses they use in that tournament.

The Williams, with its combined course of two Torrey Pines layouts, can be difficult at times and certainly is not a shooting gallery. Snead won last year with a 16 under par score of 272, which was the lowest winning score in half a century. Palmer won the 1957 San Diego Open, and with a 271 in the 1961 title in a playoff. Of those were his glory years. Arnie says he feels he can't win if he plays more often.

Last week in the Crosby, he missed the cut by two shots, spent so much time trying to catch former president Gerald Ford's partner in the pro-am, that he neglected his own game.

Bounce back time for Baylor Bears

The past week has brought quite an alteration in the life of Jim Haller.

"Last week I was suggesting what people should do," he said. "Now I'm telling them."

Haller took over as head basketball coach at Baylor University last week after the unexpected resignation of Carroll Dawson. And since then the Bears have dropped decisions to Texas Tech and Houston.

Baylor will try to give Haller his first victory Wednesday night against the lowly Rice Owls (1-6) in one of two Southwest Conference games on the schedule TCU (0-7) will be at Texas A&M (3-4) in the other contest.

"It's been hectic to say the least," said Haller. "There's been a big change in my life, and a big change for the team, too."

"I'm quite disappointed in the way we started, of course. But this is not going to be an overnight process.

"I had a lot of respect for Carroll Dawson. But no two people are alike. I think the biggest factor right now is to get the players to thinking like winners and have more confidence in ourselves. We have got to be more intense and compete a little harder, have more concentration in what we doing."

"I thought we played pretty good against Tech, but I was disappointed with our effort in Houston."

Baylor, one of the pre-season favorites, will carry league mark into the meet Rice.

"You can never take anything granted," Haller said. "Rice has yet to play its best of the year."

"And the coaches at Houston both said they played the best game they played all year against us."

"But I've always been going not going to get down on myself. Right now the way we could do is worry about one of the teams in this conference. What we've got to do is become the best team Baylor can become."

"We have the resources to tell the people in Houston that we were Monday night players. Cougars were coming off their win of the season against A&M and they had only one there. Our last two games we have drawn 9,000 and 8,000. We have the support."

Conference activity will be Thursday with two key games — league leading and 16th-ranked Arkansas (7-0) at SMU (5-2) and place Houston (5-1) at Tech (5-3).

Those two games were back to Thursday from Wednesday in order to reduce the time in Texas and Houston would be on the road for their weekend trip. Baylor on Saturday afternoons and Houston to SMU on Saturday.

The results of the women's were:

1. Lisa Crispin, Texas Tech (victories, defeats);
2. Alison Colquhoun, Baylor, Houston, 5-1;
3. Kim Jones, Dad's Club, ton, 4-2.

In the men's foil finals the were:

1. Mike Monks, University of Houston, 5-0;
2. Richard Lanfear, Texas Tech, 4-1;
3. Mike Bienek, Dad's Club, Houston, 2-3.

Seven women and 11 men competed in all. "For this early in the season was a good turn out," A&M Coach Abe Cyrus said. "This is the first tournament preparation for the College Championships coming up at U.T."

Club president Paul G. "The A&M fencers, after a slow season in the fall, are quite well against fencers from other areas."
