

Architecture gets grant

Representatives of Diversified Design Disciplines, Houston-based international architectural, engineering, planning and project management firm, have for the third consecutive year presented Texas A&M University a $3,400 gift.

A majority of the contribution will once again go to the College of Architecture and Environmental Design to be used by the dean for special projects.

A&M magazine offers prize for short story

The 56th issue of "Quartet," a literary magazine edited and printed at Texas A&M University, is expected off the presses early next week.

Editor Richard H. Costa, English professor, said the 40-page, Fall 1976 issue contains new work by 40 poets, half of whom have been previously published in the magazine since 1962.

In related events, Dr. Costa announced "Quartet" had received a $3,400 grant from the Coordinating Council of Literary Magazines and the firm's executive vice president and a 1960 A&M graduate, and H. Davis Mayfield III, director of business development and a 1968 A&M graduate. Rains said that the 22 Agencies at 3D comprise a larger percentage of the professional staff, as well as of the 3D board of directors, than any other single university.

"Unrestricted gifts, such as provided by 3D are particularly valuable because they allow us to undertake various academic enrichment programs and related endeavors for which state funds are not appropriated," Dean Reed said. The 3D contribution represents 100 per cent participation by A&M graduates in 3D's Houston, Dallas, Austin, New York City, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, and Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates Offices.

English professors chosen national committee members

Two associate professors of English at Texas A&M University have received three-year appointments to national committees of the combined Modern Language Association and Association of Departments of English.

Each individual contribution was matched by 3D. 3D/Neuhaus and Taylor, a part of 3D, is the architect for the Kleberg Animal & Food Sciences Center now under construction on the new A&M west campus.

Elizabeth Cowan was chosen for membership on the MLA-ADE's national teaching committee while Greg Cowan was selected for the national public literacy committee. Both groups select only six members nationwide.
