Several exhibits will depict how synthetic natural gas can be obtained from the nation's huge coal reserves. Another exhibit will show how petroleum may be obtained from the processing of oil shale. Still other exhibits will deal with solar heat collection, geothermal electric power generation and nuclear power reactors. Besides exhibits, there will be several question-andanswer consoles where visitors can measure their "energy quotients." The exhibit is operated for ERDA by Oak Ridge Associated Universities, a nonprofit education and research organization of colleges and universities, which includes A&M.

WINDS calmed enough last night o allow firefighters to contain a ange fire which has burned hundreds of thousands of acres of ranch and in the Southwest Texas county of Schliecher, south of San Angelo. There were no reports of injuries and no homes had been destroyed, said the county's sheriff's deputy. High winds pushed the fire across the northeast part of the county and nto some neighboring counties. More than 100 persons were fight-today are awaiting information about a Robert Johnson being held in the Virgin Islands, but held little hope that the Johnson in custody was the same one being sought for grain theft in Texas. The arrest was learned from a police inspector in the Latin American country of Belize, where Johnson once had business dealings. Johnson, 43, of Iowa Park disappeared Jan. 3 during a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico. Since his disappearance, authorities have investigated Johnson's grain businesses and determined at least a half million bushels of grain were

THE RIO Grande Valley is being affected by the nation's weird winter, with one section of the area suffering an overabundance of water at the same time another part is facing a severe shortage. Because of inadequate snowpack in the mountains which feed the Rio Grande, El Paso has a shortage of water as the April 1 cotton planting season approaches. AFL-CIO President George Meany received private assurance from the President this week that labor will not be affected by the anti-inflation program which will monitor wage increases. However, administration economist Charles Schultze yesterday continued to defend the need for the program. Carter's anti-inflation program has changed dramatically since his campaign, when he promised to seek standby authority for wage-price controls and a mandatory system requiring advance notice of wage or LESS COFFEE will be drunk by Americans even if the price goes down. Ever since 1964, the last time there was a jump in coffee prices, consumption has declined in the United States on a per-person basis. Young people in particular are downing more soft drinks, perhaps even wine and beer, where McAllen area, farmers have had to their predecessors drank coffee. These thoughts about the future of delay cotton planting because of too coffee drinking were expressed by coffee sellers during two days of congressional hearings into why the price of coffee has tripled.
