

Dance Arts Society performs first public recital tonight

Those who enjoy the art of dance have a chance to see the public recital of the Dance Arts Society of Texas A&M University in its performance.

Each of the dances has been choreographed by students in the club, she said.

In case of rain, it will be moved to G. Rollie White Coliseum 266.

Swanson said the Dance Arts Society, which has been in existence since 1974, has a current membership of 40. It is open to all students, faculty and local residents interested in performing or theater dance.

The club offers instructional classes every week in modern jazz, modern dance and ballet.

The club also sponsors special workshops during the year. These are three-hour lessons taught by specialists in tap and modern dance. The public is invited to these classes. Non-members are charged a small fee.

Free enterprise consultants have first meeting here

The recently-appointed board of consultants for Texas A&M University's new Center for Education and Research in Free Enterprise will meet here Saturday.

University President Jack K. Williams said the center is being organized with the assistance of a $300,000 gift from the Association of Former Students, the university's alumni organization, and the Texas A&M University Development Foundation.

City council approves plat for new park

The College Station City Council Monday approved a preliminary plat for the University Park East, located on the southeast corner of University Drive and Tarrow Street.

The council also approved a final plat subdividing lots 19, 20, and 21, located on Southwood Valley, Block 23 of Southwood Valley, Block 7-B.

The Planning and Zoning Commission recommendation that the plat be approved for Parkway Plaza Drive be placed on the plat.

The council also voted to change the wording of park dedication ordinance on Willow Creek and the new apartment projects.

Brooks Coler, a College Station resident, asked the council to consider a rezoning request. The council will reconsider ordinance 1073 on May 10.
