5,643 scholarships granted

Aggies get $6.5 million financial aid in 1976-77

More than $6.5 million has been spent on financial aid at Texas A&M University during 1976-77. Students were granted 5,643 scholarships and 2,960 loans through the Student Financial Aid Office located in Room 303 of the YMCA Building.

According to the Texas A&M catalogue, Valedictory Scholarships and Opportunity Awards are limited to entering freshmen and granted for their first year at A&M. The President's Scholar Award and Academic Achievement Scholarships are also granted to freshmen on a four-year basis. All freshmen scholarships are based on high school academic performance.

R.M. Logan, director of student financial aid, said there are about 115 Spring Award Scholarships granted annually to upperclassmen. The Junior College Merit Award Scholarships are designed to encourage outstanding students to transfer to A&M. There are between 25 and 30 awarded each year.

These scholarships are based on academic achievement. Logan said the Duffie Award grants $500 to seniors during their senior year who have worked their way through school.

Senior engineers are eligible for the ALCOA Award ($750), which is based on extra-curricular activities and leadership, as well as academics.

Students without a high CPR may also request financial aid.

Parents of students seeking financial aid, submit a need-analysis report, or, Parents Confidential Statement, while independent students must complete a financial aid form. These analyses are sent to the College of Scholarship Service in Berkeley, Calif., which evaluate the student's need and suggests eligible students.

Logan said that family size, parents' salary and expenses are taken into consideration when financial need is decided.

Financial aid includes grants-in-aid, loans and student part-time employment. Athletic and ROTC scholarships are included in the grants.

Texas A&M participates in long-term loans such as the Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan. In 1968, Texas was authorized to sell $85 million in bonds to fund the program. Students can borrow $1,500 each academic year, but the total amount may not exceed $7,500. The loan should be repaid after graduation.

The Federally Insured Loans, the National Direct Student Loan Program and Short-term Emergency Loan Programs are also available to students.

Logan said the National Direct Student Loan is popular because it has a three per cent interest rate.

Funds for financial aid come from various accounts, including the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant Fund funded by the Federal government, and the Student Incentive Grant, which is funded by the Federal and state governments. Another account, the Texas Public Education Grant Fund, is supported by A&M students.

For every $4 students spend per semester hour, 25 cents is put into special fund, Logan explained.

Endowed funds, investments and gifts are also used for financial aid. Students not seeking grants or loans who need some financial assistance might consider part-time employment either with the University or off-campus. Clip boards with offers are located in the Student Financial Aid Office.

Other job listings are located in the Placement Office, tenth floor Rudder Tower. These jobs include summer employment in Bryan-College Station and other cities.
