Texas toll second largest

DWI causes most traffic deaths

By BO GRIFFIN

Texas has the second largest highway death toll in the nation, with about 2,694 deaths a year.

The major cause of traffic death is driving while intoxicated, better known as DWI. The national percentage of traffic deaths caused by DWI is 50 per cent a year and climbing.

Research studies indicate that the DWI offenders are predominantly working-class males between the ages of 20 and 54 with a median age of 37. The Brazos County Probation Department divides DWI offenders into different groups.

"The first type of offender is the 'Party Boy' DWI, said Fred Maddox, adult probation officer.

"The 'Party Boy' is the offender who occasionally drinks and drives on New Year's Eve, Fourth of July and other special occasions."

"The second type of offender is the 'Dropout,' a young male that has no job skills or training and is frequently arrested for DWI," he said.

"The third kind of offender is the 'Veteran,' a middle-aged, responsible working alcoholic," Maddox said. "This type of person sees the chances he missed earlier in life and realizes it is too late for change."

He said that the last two types of offenders are the most persistent and can be helped through a voluntary rehabilitation process.

In Texas, DWI fines range from $100 to $5,000. Sentences from 10 days to 2 years in jail. The maximum sentence is 5 years in prison.

The Texas Department of Public

Safety and local law enforcement officers are teaming up against DWI offenders. The mandatory screening test is used as a deterrent. This test determines alcohol percentages in the blood. The legal percentage of alcohol in blood is .08 per cent.

Another deterrent is the amount of alcohol consumed. The United States, and Australia are the only countries that use this test.

Other preventive measures include the lowering of blood-alcohol concentrations using random breath-testing large scale.

Eagles winter in California

United Press International

PORTLAND, Ore. — The largest winter population of bald eagles in the continental United States may be located in northern California and southern Oregon, the U.S. Wildlife Service reports.

A coordinated federal bald eagle survey found over 498 bald eagles in the Klamath last winter.

"Deliriously erotic."*

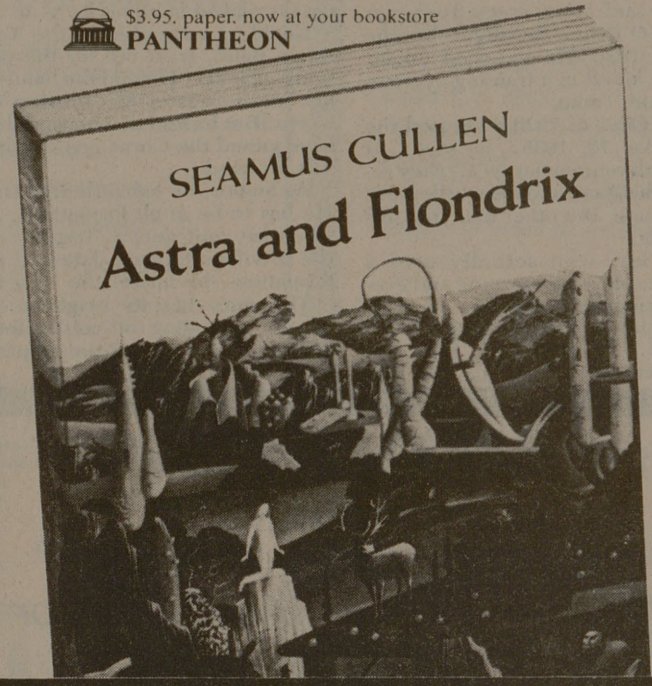

*"This fantasy, as enchanting as it is enchanted, will fill appreciative readers with the same joy in youth amidst surging nature A Midsummer Night's Dream still weaves.

"Seamus Cullen has created a world similar in some ways to that of Tolkien: it possesses that certain shimmer. Yet he has done Tolkien one better by making his world deliriously erotic.

"The tale is both classic and fresh, the story of a quest beginning 'once upon a time, many years hence' when our world has been reduced to atomized ashes.

"But to give more than a hint of Astra and Flondrix would be to diminish its magic." —Houston Chronicle
