Six Aggies drafted

Football draft likes SWC

United Press International
New York—Five Southwest Conference players were chosen in the first round of the NFL draft Tuesday—more than any other conference, and the Cleveland Browns thought so highly of Texas A&M linebacker Robert Jackson they called him "the third best player in the draft."

Other Ags drafted by the pros were: Dennis Swilley, by Minnesota, in the second round, Edgar Fields, by Atlanta, in the third round, Tank Marshall, New York Jets, also in the third round, Jimmy Dean, Buffalo, in the fourth round and Lester Hayes, Oakland, in the fifth round.

The first SWC player chosen yesterday was Houston defensive end Wilson Whitley. He was the eighth player chosen and went to Cincinnati.

He was followed by Baylor defensive back Gary Green, the 10th player chosen by Kansas City, Texas defensive back Raymond Clayborn, No. 16 by New England, Jackson, No. 17, by the Browns, and Rice quarterback Tommy Kramer, No. 27, by Minnesota.

THIRD ROUND
Edgar Fields, defensive tackle, Texas A&M, by Atlanta.
Thomas Howard, linebacker, Texas Tech, by Kansas City.
Tank Marshall, defensive end, Texas A&M, by New York Jets.
Val Belcher, offensive guard, Houston, by Dallas.

FOURTH ROUND
Jimmy Dean, defensive tackle, Texas A&M, by Buffalo.
Guy Brown, linebacker, Houston, by Dallas.
Gerald Skinner, offensive tackle, Arkansas, by New England.

ROUND FIVE
Lester Hayes, running back, Texas A&M, by Oakland.
Gary Gregory, offensive tackle, Baylor, by New York Jets.
Ernest Lee, defensive tackle, Texas, by St. Louis.
Dennis Winston, linebacker, Arkansas, by Pittsburgh.

"Jackson was the third highest rated athlete by our scouting group," said Cleveland vice president Nate Walleck. "Only Tony Dorsett, who went to Dallas, and Ricky Bell, who went to Tampa Bay, were higher."

"We were delighted to have chosen him. He has the speed to play any of the linebacking positions, although we chose him to play in the middle."

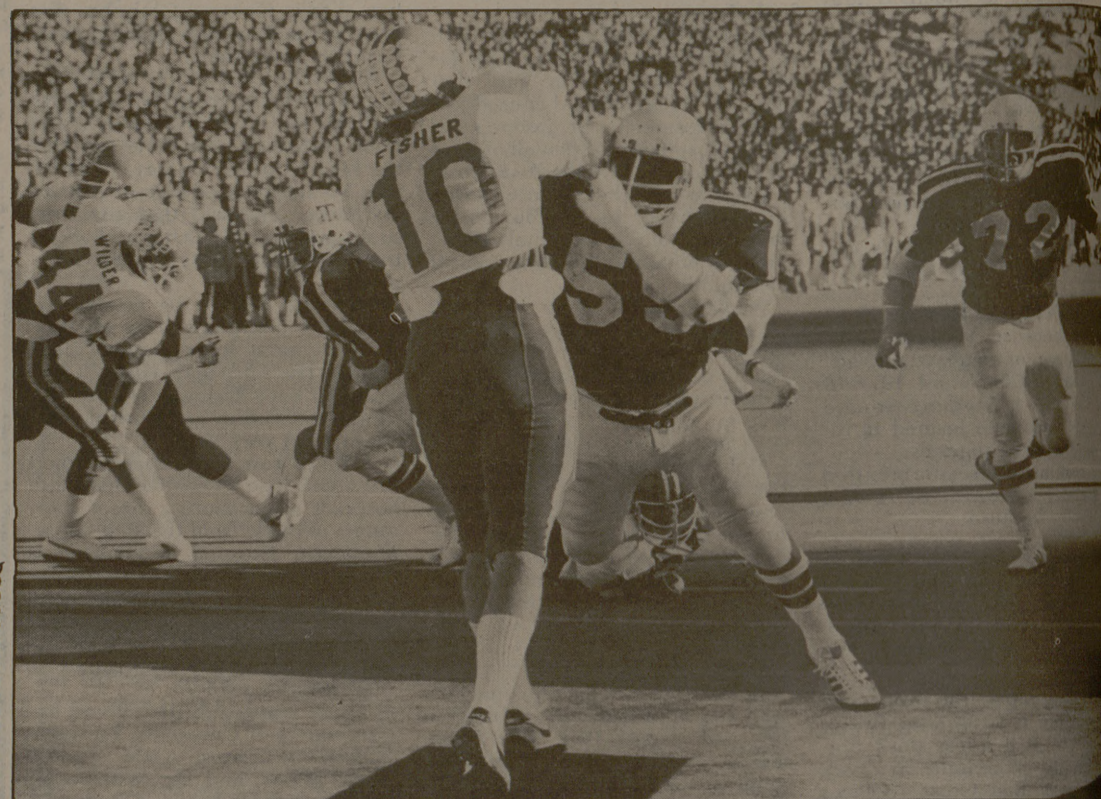

New England used a selection had obtained from San Francisco draft Clayborn.

"We took Raymond as insurance in our defensive secondary and as a backup return man," said England coach Chuck Fairbanks.

"He played wide receiver, running back early in his career, we did not take him with those intentions in mind."

that he was the third best player in the draft. (See related story on Page 13.)

Pirates owner's horse is Kentucky Derby hopeful

United Press International
LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Darby Dan Farm's Sanhedrin is not given much chance of winning Saturday's Kentucky Derby, but neither were Chateaugay nor Proud Clarion.

Both won running in the colors of Pittsburgh Pirates' owner John Galbreath, and he never hesitated about sending Sanhedrin against Seattle Slew once more after a second-place finish in the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct.

Ten lengths behind Seattle Slew and in last place with three-eighths of a mile to go in the Wood, Sanhedrin finished only 3/4 lengths behind winner and was 4 1/2 lengths ahead of the rest of the field.

Asked how long it took to do to give Sanhedrin a shot in 1 1/4-mile Kentucky Derby, the Lou Rondinello said, "About seconds. I asked Mr. Galbreath, you think," and he answered, "course we're going."

Seattle Slew is an odds-on favorite for the $125,000-added race, but Galbreath knows upset occur in America's greatest horse race.

In 1963, Chateaugay paid $2 with his upset of Candy Spots Never Bend. And in 1967, Proud Clarion returned $62.20 for upset victory over Damascus.

Rondinello agrees Karen Mickey Taylor's Seattle Slew appears likely to run his unbeaten record to seven victories in the Derby. "I think he's (Seattle Slew) class by himself," Rondinello said. "But he's never proved he can't mile and a quarter. I think he's probably will, but until he does, I don't know. He's been impressive but not awesome."

Galbreath and George Steinbrenner, the owner of Hollywood Derby winner Steve's Friend, are run up against each other again in the year.

Galbreath's Pirates lead the National League East and Steinbrenner's New York Yankees are chosen in on the American League East lead, so the two sports moguls compete against each other in the Kentucky Derby and the World Series this year.
