Supreme Court rules on pornography law

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has put a brake on its deference to local communities in dealing with distribution of hardcore pornography.

In a busy, multiple-decision day Monday, the justices ruled 5 to 4 that a federal jury in Iowa must look to high court guidelines for determining whether material is offensive, not state law. The state law punished only dissemination of obscenity to minors.

The American Library Association and the Association of American Publishers expressed disappointment at the ruling. Their lawyers had suggested that the whole thrust of a major obscenity decision in 1973 was to give states more leeway. And, that if states wished to accord additional First Amendment protection the federal government need not meddle.

But the court upheld the conviction of a Des Moines man on charges of sending obscene material through the mail within the state.

The opinion said a state's right not to regulate in the obscenity field cannot compel the federal government to allow in-state obscene mailings.

In another case, the court ruled unanimously that states may pattern union security provisions in contracts with labor unions after the laws that apply to private business.

In a Detroit teachers' case, it held that employees who do not wish to join a union may be compelled to pay the equivalent of dues but that the money may not be used for ideological causes to which the individual objects. The aggrieved per-

AGGIELAND REFUND POLICY

Yearbook fees are refundable in full during the semester in which payment is made. Thereafter no refunds will be made on cancelled orders. Yearbooks must be picked up during the academic year in which they are published.

Students who will not be on campus when the yearbooks are published, usually by September 1, must pay a mailing and handling fee. Yearbooks will not be held, nor will they be mailed without the necessary fees having been paid.

Refunds will not be made on books not picked up within one semester of the publication date.

This policy took effect on October 22, 1976.
