

Pro teams make final cuts

United Press International Tuesday's NFL cuts were the undermost yet as several former All-Pros and two Heisman Trophy winners were among those waived.
When teams painfully pared their rosters to the league's 43-man, season-opening limit.

Defensive tackle Bob Brown, safety Bill Bradley, cornerback Ken Ellis and wide receiver Marlin Briscoe were the All-Pro and quarterback Steve Spurrier and Pat Sullivan the Heisman Trophy winners.

Brown became expendable when the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders acquired 270-pound former Notre Dame star Mike McCoy from the Green Bay Packers for defensive lineman Herb McMath and two undisclosed draft choices.

Bradley, who lettered at Texas as a quarterback, wide receiver and defensive back, is the Philadelphia Eagles' all-time interception leader with 34. Acquired in the off-season for a draft choice, the three-time Pro Bowler had missed only two games in his eight-year career.

Briscoe, a 10-year veteran from Nebraska, played for six AFL and NFL teams before New England acquired him last fall. In his Pro Bowl year of 1970 he caught a league-high 57 passes for 1,036 yards while with Buffalo. New England also cut veteran wide receiver Randy Vataha.

Spurrier, a 10-year veteran who starred at the University of Florida, was waived by Miami. The Dolphins preferred to use Don Strock as their backup to veteran Bob Griese, who finished second to Spurrier in 1966 Heisman Trophy balloting while at Purdue.

Miami also waived Ellis, who played in two Pro Bowls and started 84 straight games from 1970 to 1975 for Green Bay, which traded him to Houston last year with veteran quarterback John Hadl and draft choices for quarterback Lynn Dickey.

Sullivan, a former Auburn standout, got the ax from the San Francisco 49ers. The 1971 Heisman Trophy winner was tainted with the accusation that he edged Cornell running back Ed Marinaro, recently cut by the New York Jets, because of "bullet" votes cast by writers from the South and Southwest in which they named Sullivan as the winner with no runners-up.

Atlanta waived six-year veteran defensive tackle Jeff Yeates, New Orleans cut fourth-year running back Alvin Maxson, San Francisco waived running back Kermit Johnson and tight end Jim Ob-radovich and Seattle cut 35-year-old defensive end Bob Lurtsema.

In other developments, Chicago placed veteran running back Mike Adams and defensive back Len Walterscheid on the club's inactive roster and veteran running back Larry Schreiber on the injured reserve list.

Oakland also put top draft pick Mike Davis, a defensive back from Colorado, on injured waivers, cut kicker Rolf Benirschke and running back Ted McKnight and returned veteran kicker Errol Mann to the roster. Pittsburgh put running back Frenchy Fuqua, wide receiver Theo Bell, guard Steve Courson and defensive lineman Tom Beasley on the injured reserve list.

ABOUT THE AGGIE
AND THE TURKEY....

THE JOKE IS ON VIRGINIA TECH THIS WEEK! Tech has potent attack

By ANDY PENNINGTON
Saturday the Texas Aggies defense will face a stern challenge when they meet Roscoe Coles and the Virginia Tech Gobblers.

Coles, a 5-9 senior from Virginia Beach, Va., will be looking for his third straight one thousand yard this season.

"Roscoe has a whole lot more want-to than most college football &M players," Virginia Tech Coach James Sharpe.

Joining Coles in the Gobbler backfield will be junior quarterback David Lamie, Dickie Holway at 931 South back and Dennis Scott at the other halfback slot.

With the 9.6 second speed of Scott, and Coles' ability to get loose and make the big play will keep the Aggie defense on their toes.

"It is interesting to note that Roscoe had a better average yards per carry on fewer carries last year than George Woodard did," backfield coach Nelson Stokley said.

The Aggie offense will also be put to the test against a strong Gobbler defensive unit anchored by senior linebacker Rick Razzano and junior defensive back Gene Bunn.

Bunn, a one-year letterman, was ranked seventh in the nation last year in interceptions with a total of seven.

Razzano is," as gutsy as they come," said Sharpe. "He has those intangible qualities that every coach wants in a player."

Noseguard Bill Houseright will be trying to stop George Woodard up the middle. An extremely agile player for his size, "he is as good as there is," according to Sharpe.

Sharpe is very cautious, yet confidently looking toward Saturday's game and the season ahead.

"No one game is going to make or break our season. Before the year is over we will have a good football team and hopefully a winning record."

A&M to play minor leaguers

The Southwest Conference champion Texas A&M baseball team will play the top 25 Houston Astros farmhands in an exhibition game Sept. 25 in the Astrodome. The game will be the second half of a doubleheader with the Astros meeting the Los Angeles Dodgers in the first game beginning at 2 p.m.

Each year the Astros bring their top 25 young players to Houston for a two-week instructional school which is climaxed by a game against an area college team.
