New welfare plan
United Press International
WASHINGTON — HEW Secretary Joseph Califano urged Congress today to scrap the nation's welfare system and replace it with a "pro-family and pro-work" program of jobs and income for the poor.
President Carter has proposed the first major revision of the welfare system since the Great Depression, a $31.1 billion package of jobs and supplemental income for the poor. The plan represents $2.8 billion in new welfare spending.
Opening the administration's congressional testimony on the Carter plan, Califano said welfare as it exists is intolerable.
"The time is now for welfare reform because most Americans agree that we simply have to scrap our present welfare system and build a better one," Califano testified.
He was the first witness at a series of hearings before a special House welfare reform subcommittee.
Rep. James Corman, D-Calif., subcommittee chairman, said he supported welfare reform and urged both the House and Senate to respond creatively to the welfare problem. Congressional action on the welfare proposal is not expected this year and a fully operating welfare reform is not anticipated until 1981.
The plan would create up to four million public service jobs for parents and guarantee a minimum income for families and persons unable to work because of disability or age.
Corman was not as prompt as Califano to dismiss the present welfare structure. "It distresses me greatly when people speak of the present income-support system as a total failure," Corman said in an opening statement.
He said it would not be enough to "tinker with the present irrational structure" because welfare now provides incentives for families to split up and discourages work.

Oswald's widow talks
United Press International
NEW YORK — Lee Harvey Oswald's Russian-born widow, Marina, says she locked him in a bathroom and persuaded him to give up plans to kill Richard Nixon seven months before he assassinated President John F. Kennedy.
The quotation was contained in a copyrighted, pre-publication excerpt carried by the Ladies Home Journal from a book entitled "Marina and Lee," written by Patricia Johnson McMillan. Ms. McMillan based her book on interviews with Marina Oswald Porter, Oswald's widow.
Marina said Oswald decided to make an attempt on Nixon's life after reading a news story on his demands that the Russians be forced out of Cuba.
Throwing down the April 21, 1963, edition of the Dallas Morning News, Oswald tucked his gun belt and told his wife Marina going to "have a look" at Nixon was "coming to town."
The former Mrs. Oswald did what she had done before — off beatings by her husband, tricked him into going to the room and then braced herself for the door.
Crying, Marina said she got through the door. "How can I do it after you gave me your promise? You promised me you'd never let anyone else and here you are in all over again."
"I'm pregnant. I can't take any more time. I could lose the baby," she said as she wept.
Oswald relented, the expert when she protested again he could lose the baby.
"He gave up his gun and tucked it under the mattress then got him to strip down and underwear to insure that he would not leave."
