Race finale in October

By PAT EDMUNDSON

If you're not caught up in the mad mania, try viewing a group of stock cars buzz around a road course at 80 mph. It may arouse interest in automobile racing. The Texas Race of Champions returns to Texas World Speedway for 15 for a pair of 50-mile races, bringing the top "super" stock cars as "Super" refers to a change, modification in the engine, suspension or gearing of a stock car. The race we started last year as "Super," said Richard Conole, president and owner of Texas World Speedway. "It was an amazingly competitive race and successful."

The event will be the season finale for TWS promoters. Three (United States Auto Club) with the present ticket situation within the conference, A&M has experienced relatively few.

"I feel as if the system we have here at A&M is the best possible system available," Groff said. "The only change could be the exclusion of date tickets available to the students. I suspect that about one third of our Tech tickets went or will go to non-students. But that's a problem the Student Senate will have to look at."

"I just feel as if we ought to take care of our own people first."

The drivers compete on tracks throughout the state on weekends. "It is, in fact, the state championship of the super stock cars that run on Friday and Saturday nights," Conole commented.

The event includes a purse increase of 50 per cent over last year.

The prize money jumped from $6,000 to $9,000.

"With the sponsorship money and the contingency money that comes in from companies and the entry fees that car owners will pay us, we can afford the increase in purse," Conole said.

"It's probably the most economical race we've ever put on," he added.

The purse increase still allows the fan to view the event at a cheap rate, however.

"The spectator can come and watch a tremendous race for five dollars," he said. "There's no question that for five dollars that's the greatest buy in sports."

The race will be held on the tricky, inner two-mile road course at TWS, a challenging stretch with sharp curves. The drivers will enter the road course from the high banked, two-mile oval, continue through the turns and emerge at the third turn of the oval.

"Coming out of that third turn they are really flying," said Conole. "They're going faster than they've ever gone at the local track."

The set-up enables the fan to see all of the action from the grandstands.

"That's one of the reasons why we are utilizing the two-mile course," said Conole. "It's very important that the spectator see the cars as they maneuver for position," he added.

Qualifying trials at TWS for the Texas Race of Champions will be held at noon on race day, with the green flag to drop at 2 p.m.

Tickets can be obtained at the speedway box office on Highway 6.

A&M-Tech tickets; valuable commodity

By MARK PATTERSON

A ticket to the A&M-Tech game is a very valuable commodity. At least it is to the few students who spent Sun- night camped in front of G. Rol- White Coliseum in hopes of get- ting a ticket to tomorrow's game. The hopes of getting one is all had, with the majority of the nighters coming away empty handed.

Tech allotted us 6,288 tickets, the amount we gave them last year, said Wally Groff, assistant director for business affairs. Those allotted, 3,742 went to the ticket holders and the Aggie, with the rest going to the stu- dents. Of the 2,546 student tickets, 1,000 were taken out for the band, so we can see what we ended up with on Monday.

Two years ago, we only sold 100 tickets for the Tech game up at Lubbock. But that was before the reference (Southwest) was so bal- led and these two teams were ming. Though we're happy to see demand increase to see the Ag- play on the road, this problem (net shortages) shouldn't appear in this year.

Baylor has allotted us 5,779 stu- dent tickets this year for the game in Houston. We play Rice in Houston this year and with our following in the Houston area, the game should be a bout. Yet we've been allotted 1000 tickets for our students. And for the TCU game in Fort Worth, we've received 6,956 stu- dent tickets. More are available if we need them."

How do the ticket allotments compare to A&M students compare to away A&M treats visitors? "We've always been treated on road better than we've treated people coming here," Groff said. Last year Texas gave us 17,281 tickets for the game in Austin. This year we sent them 8,879 tickets. We gave Houston 8,068 tickets this year, yet they gave us 24,650 tickets last year for the game in Austin."

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Coach Rashad, who suffered a mild concussion in last week's game, practiced Thursday and will be in starting lineup for Saturday night's game against Tampa Bay, Minnesota Viking's Coach Bud said Thursday.

Guard Ed White, who was missed from training camp for seven weeks, was activated Thursday. In order to make room for him the Vikings waived offensive tackle Bart Betow, from the University of Minnesota.
