

Today football, tomorrow medicine

United Press International
NEW YORK — When Freddie Scott takes off his jersey and pads, look at that physique of his and yourself, here's a guy with the build — to run the 220, do a half backward somersault three-meter board or maybe the electric guitar for some group.

Freddie Scott is one of the Baltimore Colts' wide receivers and before the year is over, he could become their most important one. If the Colts figure on going anywhere this season, anywhere like, say, the Super Bowl four months from now, they're resigned to the fact their only way of getting there is with "The Bomb."

Fortunately for them, they have someone to throw it. A young fellow by the name of Bert Jones. Nobody in the NFL can whip the ball like he can, which doesn't mean a thing if there's no one to catch it. In that regard, the obvious name that jumps to mind is Roger Carr because he and Jones work together with a football the same way Steve Carlton and Tim Lincecum do with a baseball, so normally the Colts wouldn't have any concern in that area.

They do have, though. For one thing, Carr reported to them late after holding out and for another, he wouldn't have any concern in that area. So that brings us right back to Freddie Scott, the 25-year-old Grady, Ark., speedster. He's listed as being 6-2 and 170 pounds, but that isn't absolutely accurate because he's at what he laughingly calls his "all-time high" right now and that's only 167 pounds. Forget about his size for a minute. Scott is unusual in a number of other respects as well. He has style, the kind of class that sticks out all over him. Named the outstanding teenager in Arkansas in 1970, he went on to exclusive Amherst College, where he took a pre-med course and was so highly thought of, he was named captain of the football team. And when is the last time you heard of Amherst, an all-white school for years and years, ever electing a black captain? As a senior in 1973, Scott was chosen as UPI's New England Player of the Year and after graduating from Amherst cum laude, he was drafted by the Colts. During the time he has been with the Colts, Scott has begun his postgraduate work. Last year he completed his second year of medical school at the University of Cincinnati and is determined to become a physician. "I've always had a challenge to be No. 1 because of my size," Scott says. "Ever since the ninth grade, everybody said I was too small." "I love football," he adds, and from the expression on his face you can tell he honestly does.

Aggie notes. . .

The Texas A&M-Michigan football game will kick-off at 12:50 p.m. Saturday due to television. The pre-game show will begin at 12:30 p.m. The telecast is regional but will be carried by 80 percent of the nation. The game marks the first time in at least two decades that a highly rated Aggie team will meet a highly rated intersectional opponent. Michigan is rated No. 3 and A&M No. 5 in AP and UPI.

A crowd in the neighborhood of 105,000 is expected. The total could break the stadium record set against Ohio State last year. The total could be the largest crowd ever to see a Southwest Conference game play, surpassing the 104,000 who saw Baylor by Michigan in 1975. The previous high to see A&M play was at Ohio State in 1970. A crowd of 85,657 saw that contest. The 55,000 who watched the A&M-Texas Tech game was a Jones Stadium record last Saturday night.

A&M's Emory Bellard: It was a top win, no question. When two teams are equal, it always comes down to the kicking game and that's what happened. In the second half we played real good field position except for the fumble (set up a Tech TD). We really had them nailed down. The defense played the best of the year — very solid. The big play of the game was the screen pass to Dickey. It was executed perfectly. Allison (TT QB Rodney) is a great player and I truly regret that he is hurt as badly as he is but it didn't change our defensive plans any.

Texas Tech's Steve Sloan: I want to congratulate Texas A&M on their win. They did a good job of controlling things, especially in the second half. They had excellent field position and kept us bottled up the entire second half. Rodney Allison has a broken bone in the lower part of his left leg. We're not certain at this point how long he will be out.

Tech QB Tres Adami who replaced Allison, is the younger brother of Buster Adami, a linebacker for A&M 1967-1969. Buster won the Kern Tips award for the SWC his senior year.

Linebacker Roderick Reed scored A&M's last TD on a 25-yard return of an intercepted pass. But scoring was nothing new to him. As a high school ballback he had 11 touchdowns one season.

FB George Woodard, who didn't practice any last week, had 59 yards on 18 carries. He said, "My leg hurt a little but the excitement over-ruled everything." George spent last night in the hospital due to his appendix flaring-up.

Safety Carl Grulich, who made the tackle when Allison was injured, said he was blitzing and was momentarily blocked by a back. "But, Allison hesitated and I was able to catch him from behind."

Offensive tackle Cody Risen: Tech was quick and tough on defense. They filled holes so fast. It's great to know anytime we cross the 50 we can get three points.

Tony Franklin hit on field goals of 48, 25, 51 and 39 yards, all in the fourth quarter. He now has made six in a row after missing his first four attempts this year. The NCAA record for consecutive field goals is 11. Franklin kicked 9 in a row last year before missing.

Despite one 11-yard punt, David Appleby averaged 45 yards on five punts. His first two were for 63 and 59 yards.

Quarterback David Walker: This ranks as one of the top games for me since coming to A&M. We were really up for this game but we won't let down for the Michigan game. We're really going to be up for that one too.

A bus load of A&M students had a breakdown en route to Lubbock and arrived in time to see only the last four minutes of the game, but they saw the Aggies score 16 points.

The Texas A&M women's cross country team, a strong contender for the state title this season, made its 1977 debut a winning one.

A&M was led by freshman Ileana Hocking, who ran on the Puerto Rico Olympic team in Montreal, with a time of 11:36 over the two-mile course. Martha Sartain had 11:42, Cathy Coker 12:20, Kim Mallory 12:22 and Cindy Cockroft 12:34.

"The girls really ran super," coach David Williams said.

The Texas A&M women's softball team dropped a hard-fought 13-inning 3-0 decision to Sam Houston Saturday and finished third in the TWU Tournament in Denton. The Aggies are now 9-2 for the season.

A&M nipped Texas Wesleyan 9-8 in the opening game with Sami Evans getting the pitching win and Terry Sandvik hitting a homerun. Kim Bellamy was the winning pitcher in the second game as A&M routed Lamar 15-3. Then came the loss to Sam Houston before A&M defeated Texas Wesleyan behind Bellamy.
