Taylor has big shoes to fill

By DAVID BOGGAN
Battalion Staff

With only three returning defensive starters from last year there are many new names on the defensive squad of the Texas Aggie football team. Having played only one home game so far this year, most of the new players have received little recognition.

Kenneth Taylor, junior transfer student from Navarro Junior College, is one of these players. Taylor plays strong safety for the Aggies, a position vacated by Lester Hayes, who now plays professional football for the Oakland Raiders.

"I figure in time people will get to know me," Taylor says. "I'll make a name for myself sooner or later, after I have a few good games."

In his last year at Navarro Taylor received all-Conference and all-America honors at the strong safety position. The Navarro coaching staff wishes they still had Taylor's talent on their team.

"Kenneth is a great player, a good student and a great young man," says Johnny Barr, assistant coach at

Taylor

Navarro. "He is a great leader on and off the field."

"The only thing bad about him," Barr adds, "was he grew up and had to leave Navarro."

Taylor attended West High

School in West, Texas, where he played split end and free safety. He won all-District, Super-Centex and all-State honors.

"I'd rather hit than get hit," Taylor gives as his reason for abandoning his offensive position in college.

While playing in the defensive secondary has its moments of glory, Taylor knows that a mistake can bring disaster. "Getting burned" is a term used by secondaries which means they have let a receiver get behind them, outrun them, catch a pass and gain long yardage or score a touchdown.

"(Getting burned) is the worst feeling in the world," Taylor says. "The embarrassment is the worst part about it."

As if it weren't embarrassing enough on the field after a bad play, the player must then return to the sideline and face his teammates and his coaches.

"Usually people just tell you to shake it off, but in the back of their minds they are thinking bad things about you," Taylor says. "You just can't let it get you down. (If you do you might go back out there and the same thing will happen to you again."

Taylor does not plan to get burned Saturday against Baylor even though he has respect for the receiving abilities of Tommy Davidson, Ronnie Lee and the rest of the Bears' receivers.

They have the best receivers we have faced so far," Taylor says. "They haven't beat A&M in four years so they are going to be high for us."

Taylor says that the remainder of the season will be rewarding for Aggies.

"I think we will win the rest of the games," the 6-foot-2, 185-pound physical education major says. "I will be in the Cotton Bowl."

When he is not playing football, Taylor likes to watch football on television. He is involved in the leadership of Christian Athletes, enjoys hunting and swimming.

In his spare time Taylor enjoys an activity that is a favorite of many college students.

"Most of the time I just like to hang around," he says.

Texas kicking star recovering from flu

By ANDY PENNINGTON

The reports that Texas' premiere punter/place kicker Russell Erleben would miss this Saturday's game with the University of Arkansas have been greatly exaggerated according to University of Texas Sports Information Director Jones Ramsey.

"We put him in the University Health Center for his own good," Ramsey said. "We fully expect him to start Saturday against the Razorbacks."

"When I called the wire services Wednesday night to tell them that Russell was in the hospital, I fully expected to see, 'Erleben to miss Arkansas because of flu!'"

"We just put Russell in the hospital as a precaution and nothing else."

Erleben's health isn't the problem facing the Longhorns week. After losing two quarters in last week's game, Texas has depth at that position.

"Freshman quarterback Anselmy, worked out Wednesday the number two quarterback behind Randy McEachern," Ramsey said.

It was hinted Monday by Fred Akers that quarterback Constanzo might be brought back taken off the red shirted list.

"Ted has been working out the team, but not extensively," Ramsey said. "The decision to go to him could possibly start in the remaining seven games still have not decided anything finally in this case. We will just wait and see what happens."

"We hope that we won't have another weekend like last week far as injuries go. We just can't afford to keep losing key players."

Hogs begin new season

United Press International

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Arkansas basketball coach Eddie Sutton said Wednesday four starters from last season's team are returning.

The Razorbacks begin practice Saturday.

The team finished 26-2, 16-0 in SWC, but were eliminated from the NCAA playoffs by Wake Forest.

The returning starters are Ron Brewer, Marvin Delph, Sidney Moncrief and Jim Counce. Steve Schall, who split time with Steve Stroud at center last season, will open at the pivot position since Stroud has graduated.

"You have to give the starting positions to somebody when you open practice," Sutton said. "I've always believed in giving them to the older players. Obviously one of our greatest strengths is the experience we have in our starting lineup."
