Two remain in '81 president race

All but two candidates for freshman class president were disqualified Thursday because their grade point ratio is less than 2.25.

Bill Jones and Danny Weinbaum were the only candidates out of six that qualified, and there was some question about their status as candidates because their GPRs were less than 2.5.

Mike Barry, election commissioner, said the confusion resulted because last year's rules and regulations book said the GPR requirement for class officers was 2.5.

This year's book of revised regulations does not deal with student elections. A booklet was distributed what was supposed to spell out requirements for election for various offices of recognized student organizations. But according to Mike Gerst, advisor to the election commission, due to a clerical error the grade requirement was not specified.

The requirement is specified in a student senate bill that revised the requirement from 2.5 to 2.25 last year.

Seven other candidates for freshman officers and senators were disqualified because of grades. Filing for elections ended Wednesday and Barry said it will not be extended.
