A Texas A&M Town Hall Special Attraction

Policemen, deputies graduate

Lawbreakers are destroying American society while the rest of her citizens are refusing to get involved, a 26-year law enforcement officer said Friday at Texas A&M.

"And right in the middle of the whole social phenomena is the police officer," said Bob Wyatt, special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Wyatt addressed the 65th class of peace officers to graduate from the basic certification course of the Law Enforcement and Security Training Division, Texas Engineering Extension Service. The Extension Service is part of the Texas A&M University System.

Twenty-one rookie policemen and sheriff's deputies received certificates. They were presented by Chief Ira E. Scott, division head, and Bill Cooksey, course instructor.

Choya K. Walling of the Bryan Police Department scored highest among the trainees. Kenneth Miller, also chosen the most outstanding student, and Class President Ray Thaler had highest scores on the firing range. Miller is from the Madison County Sheriff's Office; Thaler, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept., from Ledbetter.

The group's training, required by law within six months of becoming a police officer, equipped the new peace officers with a broad base of knowledge on which to build their law enforcement careers.

Wyatt informed the group that in dealing with law-abiding citizens, they are facing a "bunch of moral marshmallows."

When asked to serve on juries, they renege and back off," observed the Houston area FBI special agent.

"When they do serve, they want somebody else to put the person in prison when he's found guilty. They can't have it on their conscience, they say."

They pass the buck," Wyatt charged. "They want George to do it. Well, George ain't gonna do it for you."

I'm sick of police being called pigs, especially by a punk who never worked, never votes and never takes a bath," he added. "I'm sick of court decisions. I'm sick of an imaginary push that has brought the careers of two Houston police officers into disrepute. I'm sick that police are bleeding, brained and blinded because bystanders won't think."

Wyatt asked for fairness for law enforcement personnel.

He noted that FBI agents have been indicted for illegal wiretapping and mail tampering in attempt to counteract the Weathermen. This is not your latest rock group. For those who don't throw the government of the 1960s, they vowed in the 1960s to throw the government of the 1960s committed acts of terrorism.

In 1970, the FBI was using to identify them and get them. Using well-known techniques in open manner, they proceeded so "in defense of the country and citizens of this country."

They were following orders. But draft dodgers and deserters who could not follow orders, pardoned and excused, served.

The day after New York's "Sam" murder, David Berkman was arrested, four burglars caught ransacking his apartment.

OBSESSION

A bizarre story of love.

"Exquisite entertainment."

-Richard Schickel, Time Magazine

"Obsession" is a mystery that is romantic and weird. Cliff Robertson has not been better and Genevieve Bujold is one of the most gifted actresses around. So let yourself go, wave good-bye to reality and enjoy a satisfying mystery."

-Gene Shalit, NBC-TV
