Texas is unbeaten, so are the Ags

Snap, crackle, pop

Aggie quarterback David Walker loses his grip on the football as he is smashed by SMU defenders on the Mustangs' 5-yard line. But teammate Russell Mikeska caught the fumble on the bounce, scoring the Aggies' go-ahead touchdown in the fourth-quarter. Walker rushed for 182 yards, threw two touchdowns and scored another himself as the Aggies beat the Mustangs 38-21 last Saturday.

Southwest Conerence title chase.

So just keep it quiet, wouldja? While both the Texas A&M Aggies and the University of Texas Longhorns have identical 4-0 records in league play this year, it seems the conference crown has been conceded to the Horns. The Cotton Bowl Committee has already given speculation to a Texas-Notre Dame match-up in this year's

One can hardly wonder why, what with Texas currently ranked No. 1 in the nation and the Irish being the best team around not bound by a conference to other major bowls. Hosting the possible national champion would return prestige to the Cotton Bowl which has been missing in recent years.

And there are others reasons the Longhorns are being considered a shoe-in. Texas leads the league in both total defense and total offense and ranks within the top five in the nation in each category

The Texas first team defense has allowed only two touchdowns all season while the offense averages 40 points per outing. The numbers are definitely in the Longhorns' favor Another reason: Earl Campbell. Enough said.

It's an interesting little undercover public relations campaign has going in endorsing Sh-h-h. Keep it down. Someone might hear. Nobody is supposed to know the Aggies are still in the brochure, Campbell is limited to just 14 lines in the Texas booklet. The big to-do recently has not been over Campbell as a candidate, but over the lack of information and statistics on him being distributed by the UT Sports Information Department. Jones Ramsey's staff has drawn nothing but praise for their non-campaign for Campbell.

It all boils down to a prime example of reverse psychology. Texas is able to get more publicity for Campbell by underpublicizing him, typecasting him as an underdog, while the huge p.r. campaigns given other Heisman candidates seems to have a negative effect. Thus, lack of publicity might earn Earl a trophy for his mantlepiece.

Also going "unnoticed" are the Texas Aggies of Emory Bellard. Unimpressive performances against Baylor and Rice have had those who know begin to count the Aggies out of contention.

Those folks had better readjust their thinking after viewing A&M's awesome second half comeback at the expense of SMU

The Aggies have had the appearance of a team ready to explode for several weeks. Humiliated by Michigan, chastised after the Baylor and Rice games, pushed around in the first half against SMU, the Aggies refused to roll over and die. Instead of quitting, the team faced the Campbell as a Heisman trophy can-didate. While Oklahoma State's wice, they carried the fight to the

It was a different team that peared for that final 30 minute Aggies muzzled their detractor the meantime, by playing hardnosed football. All year opponents have been saying was not as "physical" as the expected. Mustang Coach Meyer gave witness that the A could be "physical" when t wanted to.

"A&M is a very physical for team," he said. "Our injuries n showed in the second half. V you lose your main guys on it takes the guts out of your Aggie quarterback Daivd W played perhaps the finest ga his career, giving the offensea needed weapon to combat defi stacked to stop George Woo and Curtis Dickey.

The A&M defense came the with its best pass rush of these constantly hurrying SMU pa Mike Ford. The Aggie defealso contained the running better than any time this seas limiting the Ponies to 52 yards the ground.

While others may be wanti give the Longhorns the le crown with four games remain be played, the Aggies appar are not among them. They still a stern test coming up next when Arkansas comes to tow the first time in three years weeks later the Aggies resum tilities with the Longhorns.

Owner chastised again

ARLINGTON — Texas Rangers owner Brad Corbett claims the baseball commissioner's office privately has threated his team with action regarding "tampering" with free agent Larry Hisle unless the Rangers refrain from drafting the Minnesota outfielder Friday.

Corbett said the team would take its chances and draft Hisle, perhaps No. 1.

"We will not be bullied," Corbett said Wednesday.
"We will do everything possible to sign him (Hisle).
Yes, we will go ahead and draft him."

According to the Rangers, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's top aide, Sandy Hadden, Tuesday telephoned Rangers attorney Dee Kelly from New York and told him Kuhn had decided the Rangers — in particular, general manager Dan O'Brien — were guilty of tam-

Kelly said Hadden offered some private advice: forget about drafting Hisle in Friday's free agent draft and the commissioner would impose a light sentence on O'Brien and the Rangers. Kelly said Hadden also implied that if the Rangers drafted Hisle, then heavy sentence would be forthcoming.

Last year Kuhn suspended Atlanta owner Turner for a full year after declaring him guilty pering with San Francisco outfield Gary Matthe When Corbett returned to town from a busi Wednesday, he found a resignation on his de O'Brien and Kelly waiting in his office to tell him accept O'Brien's resignation.

"The facts in this case are totally out of propo the ruling. I can't believe the commissione would be negative — if it is that," Corbett said." I must say that the only thing I have to go on conversation between Mr. Kelly and Mr. Hadd "I have tried to reach the commissioner by

Hadden's call. Corbett was not pleased and refus
