Aggies Melissa Leahmann (left), Carolyn Henderson, Chuck Hoppi, Carla Kozad, Chris Rowe, Marc Bissonette and their dog, Shiner, have found a great place to go on a Sunday afternoon. This old suspension bridge offers a spectacular view for miles around of Sugar Loaf Mountain and the Little River. Many Aggies have scratched their names in sandstone near the bridge, which is located just west of Hearne.

Animals, eyes

United Press International
NEW YORK — Some species of animals have eyes with unusual features. The rabbit can see behind himself. Bees cannot see red, but they can see ultraviolet light, which is invisible to humans. Fish and snakes can't blink, but pity the poor jellyfish, he can't see at all. He can only sense light.

New study says eggs OK

United Press International
COLUMBIA, Mo.—Two eggs a day are not a health hazard to persons with normal cholesterol levels, according to a six-month study conducted at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

to eat no eggs during the same period.

At the end of three months, the two groups were reversed for another three months. Study results at the end of each three-month period found the cholesterol level of persons eating eggs and not eating eggs made no difference in average cholesterol level.

"It was the same story; the eggs made no difference in serum cholesterol among these men who apparently have the genetic ability to handle cholesterol," said Dr. Margaret Flynn, director of the study.

"About 80 percent of the U.S. population has this ability to handle cholesterol," Dr. Flynn said. So why should doctors caution all the public against eating perfectly good food—the egg—just because of the 15-20 percent who can't handle cholesterol?

Dr. Flynn, UMC professor of nutrition, said she does not recommend eggs to persons with high serum cholesterol levels.

"If your family history shows lack of heart disease, that may also be a good indication that you're able to handle cholesterol," she said.

Polls conducted recently found four out of 10 people believe eggs and heart disease were directly connected and two of the 10 said they avoided eating eggs for that reason.

"If programmed genetically by inheritance to do so, your body will properly manufacture cholesterol or degrade it," she said, "and you can tolerate considerable amounts of cholesterol without harm."

Vision defects

United Press International
NEW YORK — There are now 112 million Americans who wear corrective lenses for some vision defect, and 94 percent of people over 65 years of age require vision correction.
