GIBSON'S Court nixes pilot age bias

United Press International WASHINGTON — An aircraft manufacturer was guilty of discrimination in grounding a test pilot be-cause of his age, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The justices, returning to the bench one man short following a two-week recess, rejected without comment the appeal of McDonnell Douglas Corp., which removed Phillip Houghton from his test pilot's job at age 52. Houghton filed suit in U.S. Dis-triet Court in St. Louis, Mo., and Judge Kenneth Wangelin ruled treatment of workers between 40 can affect a test pilot's performance. But the judge was reversed last April by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The circuit court granted Houghton back pay and ordered him returned to the job of chief production test pilot if it can be shown he remains physically capa-ble of "safely and effectively" doing the job. The 1967 Age Discrimination in United Press International WICHITA, Kan.— Ara Cron, a 63-year-old gray-haired woman, cannot understand why the federal government would refuse to give marijuana to people who are slowly going blind.

"Tm certainly going to do every-thing I can to work to legalize marijuana for medical purposes," she said in a telephone interview Sunday. "This should be available to people if it's helpful.'

Cron is somewhat of an expert on the use of marijuana for the treat-ment of glaucoma, a hereditary eye disease in which fluid builds up behind the eye causing pressure on the optic nerve.

Glaucoma is a painful disease that can end in blindness. Several studies, however, have indicated marijuana reduces the pressure on the optic nerve, preventing the dis-orso from workerping ease from worsening.

Earlier this year, Cron's glaucoma took a turn for the worse. She had severe headaches and intense pain around her eyes. Her vision became worse each day.

Her doctor suggested surgery, but Cron held back. Instead, she asked the federal government to let her use marijuana. "I started writing letters, I tried every way possible," she recalls. "I wrote to HEW, to state representatives, to just everybody I could think of to obtain it legally-to no avail

Cron waited patiently for six months. But the pressure behind her eyes kept increasing and she could wait no longer. She underwent surgery in June and the opera-tion cost her part of her vision.

"I'm very resentful that I couldn't have the marijuana instead of the operation," Cron said. "There are some days when I just can't read very well at all. Heavens, yes, I was bitter and frustrated with the federal government when I came out of surgery and couldn't see too well. Before her surgery, Cron re-ceived an unmarked package in the
