Eurailpass cuts costs, allows unlimited travel

By CARLA VANATER
Students planning a European trip may find that a Eurailpass can cut their travel costs dramatically.

What is a Eurailpass? It is a single pre-paid train ticket which allows unlimited first-class train travel in 13 European countries. Prices for a regular Eurailpass range from $170 for 15 days to $420 for three months. A full-time student under 26 can buy the Student Rail Pass. This pass works like the Eurailpass but is valid only for second-class train travel. The Student Rail Pass costs $230 and is good for two months of travel. One advantage of the Eurailpass is its flexibility.

The traveler is not confined to a set itinerary, but can leave within minutes, arriving when and where desired. It also leaves the traveler free to sit back and enjoy the outside scenery as well as meet and mingle with the "inside" scenery.

Not only do European trains run fast and frequently, but most first-class sections are equipped with upholstered reclining seats. Many trains also have dining cars or snacks available. The train traveler can save on hotel bills by traveling during the night in a couchette or sleep-car. These require an additional fee and reservation.

Passes can be used in: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Luxembourg, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

These passes cannot be bought in Europe and must be purchased in the U.S. before leaving. The pass dates must be validated in Europe at the rail station ticket office where the pass holder begins his trip.

A Eurailpass does not guarantee a seat on every train, since most first-class trains require reservations. But reservations can be made and paid for before leaving for Europe.

Or if the traveler has more flexible plans, reservations can be made at any rail station in Europe before each trip. As one Eurailpass user said, "Traveling by train is the most inexpensive, convenient and pleasant way to see Europe."

Not only is the traveler free from the hassles of flat tires and closed gas stations, but time isn't wasted by commuting to and from airports. To fight the language barrier, English is used on most train schedules and signs in the trains.

Major European railway stations have centers to help make reservations, and provide information on lodging, food, luggage storage and tours.

One of the special opportunities available through the Eurailpass is the use of the Trans Europ Express (TEE) trains. These luxury, first-class, express trains travel from country to country as fast as 125 mph. Reservations are necessary for these trains.

The center campus flag at Texas A&M will be lowered to half staff Dec. 20 in memory of Creswell and of Elmer R. Alexander, retired head of agricultural education who died Tuesday.

If you are being commissioned You may want to join the Bank of A&M's World-Wide program.

When you go on active duty, your banking requirements will change dramatically. You're going to move around the world. Your need for credit and for cash will be quite different from your classmates who return to their hometown to work and live. And the penalties for record keeping errors are more severe for military officers than most (if not all) other professions.

The World-Wide Department of the Bank of A&M was conceived to meet the needs of A&M officers on active duty. The department is staffed by Aggies with first hand experience of TDY, overseas movement, car financing in a foreign city, check-cashing problems at a military installation, allotments, telephone transfers, etc.

The World-Wide program includes all the features of the so-called "military banks": direct paycheck deposit, telephone loan service, write your own loan program, overseas car financing, automatic transfers from checking to savings (and visa versa), credit cards, overdraft protection... plus personal service by senior bank officers with career military experience and Aggie know-how.

Visit the Bank of A&M today (or some day of convenience) before your commissioning date to learn how the Bank of A&M's World-Wide Department can be of service to you.
