

Aggs lose to Bears; most Houston next

By PAUL ARNETT
Battalion Sports Editor

Baptist preacher couldn't have led the Aggies to be a more generous and giving basketball team against the Baylor Bears, A&M committed 26 turnovers, connected only one free throw and shot 38 percent from the field.

They also lost 77-61.

"Our overall game was poor," said Shelby Metcalf said. "We just made mistakes. I'm disappointed because we worked real hard for this game."

The game with Houston is a critique for us. I don't think you'll be able to convince Baylor of this, but we are a much better team than we were tonight.

Actually the Bears played as well as the Aggies. Both teams had ample opportunities to blow the game wide open. Not until the final minutes of the ball game was Baylor able to accomplish that goal.

"Rebounding and good defensive play helped us win this game," Baylor coach Jim Haller said. "When you can out rebound the most physical team in the league, then you should win."

Losing on the boards definitely hurt the Aggies' cause, but scoring only four points in a six minute stretch cost the cause.

"We just couldn't score in those final minutes," Metcalf said. "Our shot selection was alright, but they just wouldn't fall."

The Aggies' leading scorer, with 16 points, was Karl Godine. The Houston Kashmere sensation kept A&M in the ball game with his long outside shots. Vernon Smith and Joey Robinson finished second in scoring with 10 points a piece.

"I think Joey played the best for us," Metcalf said. "He did a great job on Vinnie Johnson."

Johnson, the junior college hero of Baylor, was held to just 17 points.

Johnson is a great outside shooter, but doesn't move well without the ball.

"I am basically a set shooter," Johnson said. "I don't think I shoot as well if I'm moving. It doesn't matter which side of the bucket I am on. Both sides suit me."

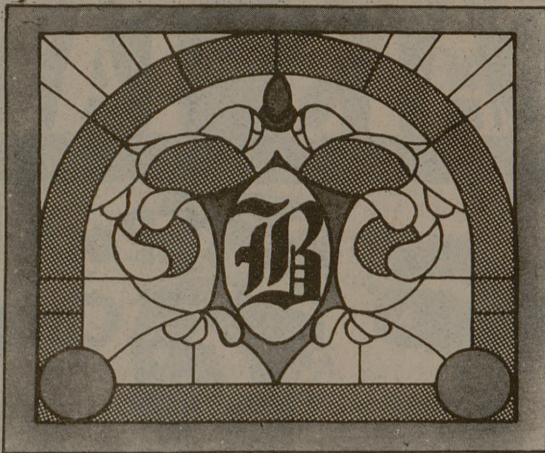

The leading scorer for the Bears was not Johnson, but center Wendell Mays. The junior from Ft. Worth finished the night with 19 points. He also led the team in rebounds with 11.

"Wendell played outstanding," Haller said. "When they concentrated on Vinnie, that left the middle open. Wendell just took advantage of the openings A&M gave him."

The Aggs will have to close off these openings if they are to compete with the Houston Cougars Thursday night. Houston has a strong ball club, despite its showing against Arkansas.

"We'll have to start at square one," Metcalf said. "We are way behind on our schedule and it worries me. There is no time to work on the basics now because you are playing games. I just hope we can get some good practices in before we get into deep trouble."

The major problem is turnovers. A&M's passes were sloppy against the Bears. If the turnover problem is prevalent against Houston, then it could be a very long night for Metcalf's men.
