Newsman won't tell story origin

United Press International
AMARILLO, Texas — A district judge has ordered a television reporter to reveal sources of information used in broadcasts about grand jury investigation of corruption in Potter County government.

Judge Arthur Tipps of Wolf Falls, presiding in the removal of suspended County Attorney Kerry Knorrpp, instructed reporter Mark Baker of KVII-TV to disclose his sources or be jailed for five more days for contempt of court.

Baker said he will not disclose source and expects to be jailed.

Baker reported on Nov. 4 that a grand jury which returned bribery indictment against Knorrpp was also considering theft indictments. The grand jury did not return a theft indictment at that time, in March of 1977 Knorrpp named in an indictment alleged misuse of more than $6,000 county funds. His removal was later filed.

Defense attorneys claim a "trine of forgiveness" should apply to Knorrpp's case, since he was elected to office after widespread public closure of the allegations. The contents reports by Baker and other reporters naming Knorrpp as subject of the grand jury study occurred one or two days after election.

New Orleans bids farewell to King Tut

United Press International
NEW ORLEANS — Museum Art workers Monday packed less artifacts from the tomb of Tutankhamen for shipment to Angeles, ending a four-month stay in the South.

More than 12,000 people saw priceless exhibit on its final day as the museum remained open midnight, seven hours past its regular closing.

Thousands earlier lined "NOMA Nile," an avenue parade to represent the Nile River a traditional New Orleans carnival.

The Olympia Brass Band played typical funeral dirges like "A Walk With Thee" on a mournful procession to the steps.

Then the band broke into tunes and quickened the pace hundreds of spectators in orange blue Super Bowl outfits strutting "When the Saints Go Marching" and "Come on Down to the Gras."

New Orleans jazz funerals, given for most blacks as a sign of respect and celebration of lives, now are held for the dead musicians and on special occasions.

"Everyone feels it was a way to say goodbye to Tut in Orleans — the only city in the try that could do it in the same manner," said museum director John Bullard.
