CS election results

By MICHELLE BURROWES

College Station voters turning out to vote Saturday decided to abolish the ward system of voting and re-elected Mayor Lorence Bravenec.

A run-off will be held between Bruce Robeck and Ann Jones, candidates for the A&M Consolidated School board.

The ward system of electing city councilmen was eliminated Saturday, so council members will be elected at large in the future. The Texas A&M campus was divided into two wards after voters narrowly approved the system last year.

Bravenec was re-elected when his opponent Karl Crawley, a Texas A&M sophomore, received 311 votes; Bravenec received 1,666.

In the school board elections, Bill Wasson was elected to fill the position vacated by Roger Feldman, who did not seek re-election. The other position will be filled after a run-off election between Robeck and Jones. Robeck, who is currently serving as school board president, received 1,018 votes, Jones, a home maker received 959 votes.

Voters also approved a $9.2 million bond issue to improve water and sewer systems and streets, buy park land, and pay for additional city buildings.

Homer Adams defeated Ward 2 opponent David Pugh 260-159, and Patricia Boughton won the Ward 4 vote 406-306 over Tony Jones.
