Many elderly live on $3,000 a year

The Meals on Wheels program delivers 54 meals in Brazos County to shut-ins. A person must be at least 65 and be recipient of SSI, according to a Community Action Agency report.

"Usually friends recommend a person who would benefit from the program," said Johnson.

Energy Assistance, another Community Action program, is planned for Brazos County to weatherize homes free.

"The overall goal," said Curt Swenson, supervisor of the program, "is to tighten up homes to make them more energy efficient so that less energy is wasted. Fuel bills have the potential of being lower — 30 percent to 40 percent can be saved."

The Community Affairs Department estimate (as determined from their housing studies of 1970 and updated census material) indicates Brazos County has 1,100 sub-standard housing units that qualify.

"Still any other number of houses are far from energy efficient," Swenson added.

Many applicants have been refused in other counties. In Burleson County, there was money for only 18 persons out of 100 who applied. Material costs can't exceed $250, said Swenson.

"The problem so far has been labor. We need volunteers."

Swenson said an advantage of the program is that it provides both immediate and long-term benefits.

Medicare and Medicaid are federal programs, paying only for medications in hospitals and nursing homes, said Rees. They don't apply to medicine self-administered and most medicine is self-administered person is eligible if he qualifies for security.)

"It is not at all unusual for people to pay bills to be $75 to $100 a month," an article in Retirement Living magazine reported health expenses to increase 15 percent annually.

"The pricing of prescriptions is high," Rees said.

Out of 20 pharmacies listed in the book, five give discounts to the elderly. The discounts range from 10 percent to 25 percent.

The supplemental benefits don't seem to be enough. Census Bureau statistics show that 7.7 percent of Brazos County is 65 or older (8.9 percent in the state), and 10 percent of the elderly work (8.1 percent in Texas).
