Arab self-rule likely permanent

United Press International
TEL AVIV — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan told a raucous session of the Knesset (parliament) that Israel's proposal granting limited self-rule to Arabs in the occupied lands was "likely to become permanent" even after a five-year test.

The parliament, after a six-hour debate punctuated by heckling, voted along party lines Monday night to approve the Cabinet's response to U.S. demands that Israel explain its plans for the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

In essence, the vaguely phrased, three-paragraph statement said Israel was willing to negotiate the future of the occupied territories after five years of limited autonomy by the area's 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs.

The autonomy plan, put forth last December in response to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative, called for dismantling the military government and expanding the role of locally elected representatives, while keeping the Israeli army in place.

The United States had asked Israel whether it would make a decision about the permanent status of the occupied areas after the five years, and, if so, in what manner would the local Arabs be allowed to express their preferences.

But Dayan told parliament Monday: "This is not a short, temporary period that ends automatically five years after it starts."

"We see administrative autonomy as an arrangement likely to become permanent, complete with its internal structure, which makes possible not only review but handling of the most central subject — sovereignty."

This was a reference to the government's declaration it would refrain from annexing the territories outright because of Jordan's conflicting claim and was seen as a reiteration of Israeli policy to bar a separate Palestinian state on land the Begin government insists belongs to Israel by biblical right.

Egypt rejected the statement as "continued intransigence" and U.S. officials in Washington voiced unofficial misgivings.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the United States has repeatedly stepped into the negotiations and might submit a plan of its own. He also said a Middle East visit by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance or U.S. mediator Alfred Atherton was "quite conceivable."

The parliament's 59-37 vote of approval was generally along party lines.

Farms report expenses higher than incomes

United Press International
WASHINGTON — More than a fourth of American farms had gross sales last year of less than $1,000 but those same farms reported expenses that averaged $4,228 per farm, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

An annual report by the department's Crop Reporting Board indicated that those farmers whose expenses averaged four times greater than gross sales comprised 27 percent of farms, but spent only 3.1 percent of the nation's farm production expenditures last year.

The report said that total farm production expenditures during 1977 were $97.9 billion, 9.7 percent more than a year earlier. The average expenditure per farm increased to $36,238, compared with $32,165 a year earlier.

In 1977 farmers spent 14.8 percent of their expenditures for feed, down from 15.8 percent the year before, and 10.4 percent for livestock, poultry and related expenses, up from 8 percent a year earlier.

They spent less for rent, fertilizer, lime and farm machinery and more for building and fencing and interest. In 1976 interest payments took up 5.3 percent of farm expenditures and in 1977 they rose to 6.2 percent.

The report contained no analysis of the kind of farmer who grossed less than $1,000, but some of them likely held down other jobs to support the deficits in their farming operations.

Farmers with gross sales between $1,000 and $4,999 made up 21.8 percent of the total number of farmers. They spent an average of $6,016 for expenses, also outspending income and made 3.5 percent all farm expenditures.

Farmers with gross sales between $5,000 and $19,999 made up an average of $17,621 and made up 19.8 percent of the total and spent 9.3 percent of the total.

The group with gross sales from $20,000 to $39,999 made up an average of $32,776. They spent 10.5 percent of the total and spent 9.2 percent of the total.

The group with gross sales from $40,000 to $99,999 made up 13 percent of farmers, an average of $65,904 and 12 percent of the total. And the group with gross sales of $100,000 spent an average of $245,207. They spent 52 percent of all farm expenditures.

Bell to push for completion of police brutality study

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Attorney General Griffin Bell promised Tuesday evening to push for completion of Justice Department investigations into more than 200 cases of alleged police brutality against Hispanic-Americans, including 50 such complaints in Texas.

Bell told members of the congressional Hispanic Caucus that the department "will give renewed effort and priority to eliminating police brutality against Hispanic-Americans," a spokesman said.

Spokesman Terrence Adamson said Bell pledged that the department would emphasize training of police officers, "developing sensitivity to race problems and vigorous investigation and prosecution where indicated."

Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., chairman of the five-member caucus, said Bell adopted five recommendations the group presented, including a pledge to speed up review and prosecution of pending brutality cases under federal civil rights laws.

Until last February, the department's policy was to leave such cases to the states for prosecution, and only a handful of federal cases were pending involving brutality against Hispanics.

But Bell ordered a federal grand jury investigation into the 1975 killing of a Mexican-American by the police chief of Castroville, Texas, who was sentenced to 10 years in prison in a state court and made eligible for parole after serving less than two years.

Roybal reported that the department now is investigating 200 cases of alleged police brutality in Texas. He said investigations have been completed in 47 cases in Texas and 50 cases in other states. He said the department will decide whether to prosecute officers involved. He said 14 other Texas cases still are under investigation.

Adamson said the department completed investigations of 11 complaints "of official violence against Chicanos in the Southwest," seven other cases, law enforcement officers are being prosecuted for violating the civil rights of Spanish-speaking Americans.

ERA backers ready for fight in Illinois

United Press International
SPRINGFIELD — Equal Rights Amendment backers, confident they finally have enough support to ratify the volatile issue in Illinois, the last holdout among Northern industrial states.

ERA advocates met Monday night but concluded a decision was possible on whether a showdown should come Tuesday or another day before the legislature adjourns June 30.

"We decided to take a firm count just before going into the session (at 1 p.m. Tuesday) to see if we should go or if today would be a better day — or maybe some other day," said Giddy Dyer, R-Houston.
