

ports Jackson out of lineup with illness 49th All Star game tonight

All Star trivia quiz

United Press International
HOLLYWOOD — Producers of the television show "Sports Illustrated" have prepared a special quiz for fans in connection with the 49th All Star game to be held in San Diego including provocative items as what manager lost the most games in an annual event.

1. Who were the 12 questions with answers below (no fair peeking)?
2. What manager lost the most games in All Star play?
3. Who was the only pitcher to start two All Star games in one year?
4. Babe Ruth hit the first home run in All Star play in the first inning — but who was the pitcher who drove in the first run?
5. What Cincinnati player hit the winning homer in the longest All Star game which lasted 15 innings in 1967 and was won by the National League 2-1?
6. Arky Vaughn was the first to hit two homers in an All Star game. He would have been the hero of that 1941 contest but Williams hit a three-run homer in the ninth inning to win the American League. Who were the three men besides Vaughn who hit two homers in All Star competition?
7. In 1934, when Carl Hubbell fanned Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin consecutively, who broke the string with a single?

8. Three managers have won pennants in both leagues but who was the only one to manage each league in an All Star game?
9. Since 1933 how many grand slams have been hit in All Star play?
10. In the 1937 All Star game, what was the name of the Cleveland outfielder who hit the line drive that broke Dizzy Dean's toe and shortened his career?
11. Who were the managers in the first All Star game?
12. Who is the only man to hit an All Star game home run for both the National and the American leagues?
13. Who was the sports writer honored by having his name attached to the Most Valuable Player Award in each All Star game?

Answers:
1. Casey Stengel lost six. 2. Don Drysdale, 1959. 3. Lefty Gomez. 4. Tony Perez. 5. Ted Williams, 1946. Al Rosen, 1954. Willie McCovey, 1969. 6. Bill Dickey. 7. Alvin Dark. 8. None. 9. Earl Averill. 10. Connie Mack and John McGraw. 11. Frank Robinson. 12. Arch Ward.

SAN DIEGO — Those controversial New York Yankees are at it again. This time they're disrupting the nation's mid-season summer baseball classic.
Reggie Jackson, scheduled to be the starting center fielder for the American League tonight, called Yankee Manager Billy Martin from Oakland on the eve of the 49th All-Star game and told him he could not play because he was running a 104-degree temperature.
Martin lost Jackson but regained Yankee third baseman Craig Nettles on the 28-man American League roster. Nettles originally was on the roster but was removed, reportedly at the insistence of Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, because of an injured toe.
"I wanted to play," Nettles said. "I don't know whose decision it was to take me out of the game."
Martin is expected to name either Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox or Chet Lemon of the Chicago White Sox today to replace Jackson as his starting center fielder.
The American League had another roster change Monday when second baseman Jerry Remy of the Red Sox was named to replace injured Rick Burleson. The Red Sox shortstop hurt his ankle while sliding in Sunday's game in Cleveland. Previously the AL lost Yankee catcher Thurman Munson with a bad knee and Boston outfielder Carl Yastrzemski with a sore back. Darrell Porter of Kansas City replaced Munson and Dwight Evans took Yastrzemski's place.
Because of a back injury, the National League All-Stars lost starting catcher Johnny Bench Sunday. Atlanta Braves' catcher Bill Poceroba was named to replace him.

In tonight's game, at San Diego Stadium, home of the Padres, Vida Blue will become the first pitcher in All-Star history to start for both the National and American leagues.
The 28-year-old left-hander, who finally escaped Oakland A's owner Charlie Finley this season to seek fame and fortune with the San Francisco Giants, will go against Baltimore Orioles' ace righthander Jim Palmer, the threetime American League Cy Young Award winner.

Blue has compiled a 12-4 record with the Giants and has helped his new club grab a two-game lead in the National League West at the All-Star break. Palmer has a 10-7 record.

Ironically, Blue, who was traded by Finley to the Giants for seven players March 15, is the last pitcher to win for the American League. That was in 1971, when the American League overcame a 3-0 deficit for a 6-4 victory at Detroit.

Since 1971, the National League has won six straight games by scores of 4-3, 7-1, 7-2, 6-3, 7-1 and 7-5. In fact, the American League has just one triumph in the last 15 years.

Brooks Robinson, who retired last season after playing in 18 consecutive All-Star games, will serve as the American League's honorary captain. The former Baltimore star third baseman was the MVP at the 1966 All-Star game and he says he's as puzzled as anyone by the National League's recent dominance.

"When I first started playing in 1960," he said, "the National League was the better team. There was no doubt about it. But the last 10 years must be psychological, because we have as much talent as they do now. We should be winning our share."

Borg seeks Grand Slam

United Press International
MBLEDON — Bjorn Borg, who notched his third straight Wimbledon title, is setting his sights on the tennis Grand Slam.
The 22-year-old Borg, who defeated American Jimmy Connors in the final, wants to become only the third player in history to win the four major titles — French, Wimbledon, Australian and U.S. Open — in one year. American Don Perry paved the way 40 years ago when he won the Australian, U.S. Open and Wimbledon in 1929 and then the French Open in 1930.
Borg, having sewn up the Wimbledon title, is adding another chapter to his phenomenal success story.
Swede tackles the third leg of his quest in the U.S. Open at Flushing Meadows next month and if all goes well he will make only his second attempt on the Australian event in December.
Australia is not normally on Borg's busy tennis itinerary. "I don't think I'll have to do it this year," he said. "I would like to go to Australia if the Grand Slam was at stake. "It means a lot to me. Before, there was no way I could dream to win the Grand Slam. I never could imagine to win the French and Wimbledon because they are so close to each other."

Nothing seems beyond the capabilities of the supercharged Swede. Before Wimbledon, bookmakers were offering odds of 7-1 against Borg becoming the first man since Fred Perry in 1936 to win the title three years running.
The pressure on Borg was enormous and it was his rival Connors, who looked the shade more impressive in advancing to the final.
The 25-year-old left-handed American from Belleville, Ill., was edged out by Borg in last year's dramatic five-set final and was anxious to win back the crown he held in 1974.
And when Connors broke Borg's first service to lead 2-0 in the opening set it looked as if his ambition would be fulfilled. But Borg then dipped deep into his vast reservoir of strokes to produce a brand of tennis rarely seen.
In fact, Borg reeled off the next six games for the set and he never let Connors off the hook, pinning the American to the baseline where he could do least harm.

Borg also outerved Connors, whipping up five clean aces and 19 service winners. Connors didn't serve an ace throughout the 1 hour, 47 minutes and had four double faults.

Crabs in Cape Cod

United Press International
ANNIS, Mass. — The Boston area, led by Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova, will see the big city four times this year for World Team Tennis at Cape Cod Coliseum.
Lobsters — leading the WTT Division — host the In-Loves tonight, the San Diego Friars July 24, the New Orleans Nets July 25 and the defending champion New York Apples July 31.

"The Coliseum will seat about 7,000 for the matches," said Mike Frucci, executive director of the Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce. "We expect good crowds for each of the matches."
