Nations vow to fight terrorists

United Press International
BONN, West Germany — The seven-nation Bonn summit conference will produce an unprecedented plan to impose economic and other sanctions against nations which harbor terrorists, according to official sources.

A statement agreed to by the chiefs of government will name no countries, but will be aimed at such nations as Algeria and Libya, which have harbored aircraft hijackers, the sources said.

West German Chancellor Helmut

Schmidt, the conference host, told a news conference, "We will issue a special statement concerning a new way to deal with terrorism."

Sources said the plan calls for tightening up procedures for the automatic extradition or trial of hijackers but gave no further details.

Similar proposals have been made before, respectively by the British, the West Germans and the French in Common Market meetings.

The Common Market countries also have stood together on anti-terrorist action in the United Nations. The Dutch, members of the Common Market but not participants at the economic summit, however, oppose extradition of persons to countries which have the death penalty.

An ambitious French plan to deal with terrorism proposes a judicial zone in Europe which would insure any terrorist would be tried or extradited under the same laws no matter in which country he or she is arrested.

European justice and police ministers are doing some practical work in the field of terrorism.

For example, West Germany makes its anti-terrorist expertise freely available to other countries — German police participated in the vain hunt for Aldo Moro's kidnapers in Italy.

The West Germans have a computer center in Wiesbaden which keeps the names of all known terrorists on file and makes such information available to other countries.

Britain also has aided the Dutch in actions against Moluccan terrorists and also sent experts to Somalia to help combat hijackers.

Black market baby given to authorities

United Press International
KANSAS CITY — Police said Sunday a week-old girl whose parents are accused of selling her for $1,000 has been returned from California and will be placed in the care of juvenile authorities.

Charges of illegal transfer of the custody of a child were filed Saturday against the child's parents, Janet Watts, 19, and Harvie King, 35. Police said a warrant has been issued for the 79-year-old landlady of the mother who allegedly arranged the sale of the baby Thursday to a Canoga Park, Calif., couple.

The landlady told police the infant had been kidnapped. She later admitted to officers, however, that she and her boyfriend had arranged through the landlady in April to sell the unborn child, police said.

The young woman later acknowledged she brought the baby to the home of her landlady, who also lived in the building, signed a receipt for about $500 and returned to her own apartment, according to police.

However, the landlady who received about $500 for allegedly arranging the transaction, told police the infant had not been kidnapped, officers said.

A Los Angeles attorney representing the couple notified police Friday that the infant would be returned, police said.

Authorities said the young mother originally told police the infant had been kidnapped. She later admitted to officers, however, that she and her boyfriend had arranged through the landlady in April to sell the unborn child, police said.

The young woman later acknowledged she brought the baby to the home of her landlady, who also lived in the building, signed a receipt for about $500 and returned to her own apartment, according to police.

However, the landlady who received about $500 for allegedly arranging the transaction, told police the infant had not been kidnapped, officers said.

The landlady told police the sale had been arranged through her granddaughter who lived in Colorado, according to police. The landlady told police her granddaughter knew a California couple who wanted to adopt a baby, police said.

The young mother brought the baby to her house, the landlady said, where the California couple was waiting to pick up the child, according to police.

The mother was paid for the child, and went home, the landlady told officers, according to police. Miss Watts and King were released after posting $500 bond each. Both are scheduled to receive a hearing July 26.

Detective John Cleeton, a 22-year veteran of the police department, said it was the first case of the alleged sale of a baby that he had observed. George Ely, chief warrant officer for the county, said authorities spent much of Saturday morning searching for an appropriate statute under which to file charges.

Man pronounced dead lives see his own wedding day

United Press International
SARACENO — Peter Saraceno was pronounced dead after an auto accident two years ago.

Monday, he was married to Franchella, who refused to hope for him, even when recommended disconnect-life supported machine.

widowed mother, Louise.

Saraceno was in a coma for 3½ months. He contracted double pneumonia.

"Three, four times they told us he had just a few hours left," Mrs. Saraceno said. "But I didn't believe it. And neither did Linda."

Because he has just completed an enlistment with the Marines, Saraceno's 21-year-old body was in good condition.

Miss Franchella spent every night at her fiancé's bedside, talking to him as if he heard. But Saraceno did not so much as flicker an eyelash.

Some of his doctors tried to discourage her visits, telling her to forget him. So did her friends.

"But I loved him. I refused to believe them. I wanted to help him. I just knew he could make it," she said.

More than three months later, Saraceno opened his eyes. He began watching Linda. Finally, he moved a finger. Then his arms and legs. Then he learned to speak again.

His rehabilitation was slow and painful, but Saraceno asked Linda's father if he could marry his daughter. Franchella agreed, on the condition Saraceno could walk down the aisle at his wedding.

On Sunday, Saraceno used a walker to meet his bride at the altar.

"The doctors call me the miracle boy," Saraceno said, "and I guess they're right. I'm lucky to be alive, and I'm lucky to have Linda."

"These last two years have taught me a lot about life. But my girlfriend, she taught me about love."

Wyoming police head charged with murder

United Press International
DENVER, Colo. — The Wyoming attorney general charged the Wyoming attorney general with first degree murder in the eyes of the shooting of one of his undercover dein justice of the peace court. A preliminary hearing was set for August 10.

Bond was not immediately set for Cantrell, who has been jailed since Saturday.

Rock Springs Mayor Paul J. Wataha — a target of the corruption allegations — had said Cantrell would be suspended if charges were filed.

Rosa was shot once, on the bridge of his nose with a .38 caliber revolver. He was in an unmarked police car parked near a Rock Springs bar shortly before 1 a.m. Saturday, authorities said. Cantrell and two other officers were in the car.

Sweetwater County Sheriff Jim Stark said the witnesses identified Cantrell as the man who did the killing.

Need a Really Good Job?

A legal career without law school can be yours as a Legal Assistant. Job opportunities are excellent in this exciting new field. Legal assistants do much work traditionally done only by lawyers.

Three months of intensive training in courses taught by lawyers can give you the skills to interview witnesses, do legal research, prepare pleadings, draft transaction documents, and prepare cases for trial under the supervision of an attorney.

The Basic Legal Assistant Course begins September 11. Call or write for further information:

WOMEN. YOU'RE EQUAL IN THE AIR FORCE.

Women start out on the same footing as men in Air Force ROTC. Women wear the same insignia and hold the same cadet positions in AFROTC, just as they do later on as Air Force officers.

And the same AFROTC scholarship can be yours as a woman. If you qualify, you can have your tuition, book costs and lab fees paid by the Air Force, and receive $100 a month for other expenses. It helps free you to concentrate on your education. And that's important.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be expected to use your training and education, and be a leader managing people and complex systems. You'll be handed executive responsibility starting with your first job.

It's a great way to be equal, and a great way to serve your country. Check into the AFROTC program at your campus. Be sure to ask about AFROTC scholarships — you may be helping yourself earn an exciting new lifestyle.
