Recent repairs improve dorms

Texas A&M University spent $508,000 renovating dormitories this summer, closed Leggett Hall for complete refurbishment and plans to have fire alarm systems installed later this fall.

Hart and Walton halls in the north dorm area were refitted with new aluminum windows and screens. Exterior waterproofing and a new roof are still in progress at Moore Hall.

The improvements are part of an annual summer renovation program. This year it involved all housing areas on the campus, said Ron Sasse, associate director of student affairs-housing.

The Hughes-Keathley-Fowler complex had its roofs reconditioned. New lounge furniture, lamps, wall hangings and a carpet for the table tennis area were projects in the Commons, and student room chairs were repaired.

In the Corps of Cadets area, Dorms 3, 5, 6, 8, 10 and 11 received extensive work. In Dorm 3, which house women members of the Corps of Cadets, individual showers were built in the common baths; other work included painting and lock and door work. Exterior cleaning, sealing and waterproofing were completed on Dorms 3, 5, 8 and 10.

In addition, Sasse said a number of rooms were painted in the north area.

New locks and doors, a project involving two dorms a year, were installed in Dorms 5 and 6, dorm 11 received a new roof.

The complete renovation of Leggett Hall, built in 1911, is expected to be completed by next fall.

Students living in some of the older residence halls are allowed to paint their rooms. Sasse said the work must be approved by the area coordinator, colors must meet university guidelines and the students must provide all materials and labor.

Defective Fords prompt 'hot lines'

United Press International
DEARBORN, Mich.— Ford Motor Co. will establish "hot line" numbers in five cities as part of an effort to determine if any Ford cars and trucks have an automatic transmission defect which could cause the vehicles to slip into reverse while parked.

be developed to allow Ford car owners outside the five test cities to call a local Ford office with their complaints.

The company said Wednesday the toll-free numbers will be in operation Sept. 11 in Detroit, New York, Atlanta, Kansas City and San Francisco.

On Tuesday, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration warned the owners of an estimated 9 million Ford cars and trucks there may be a problem with the automatic transmissions.

Herbert L. Misch, Ford's vice president for environmental and safety engineering, said each call will be answered personally and further tests will be conducted if the complaints appear valid.

Involved are an estimated 9 million cars and light trucks, 1970 through 1978 models, equipped with C6 or FMX automatic transmissions.

Misch said similar procedures will not been able to verify the defect nor has it been able to identify any design problem which might cause transmission slippage.
