Waiter injured Cable cuts juice

A sophomore in the Texas Aggie Band slipped and suffered a concussion while serving as a waiter in Duncan Dining Hall Tuesday night.

Wes Pate, of Houston, one of the Duncan Volunteers, slipped on a freshly mopped tile floor in Duncan's kitchen. John Larson, cadet major in charge of the DVs, said Pate's combat boots slipped and his head hit the floor when he fell.

Pate was not moved until the Beutel Health Center emergency team arrived 20 minutes later to remove him on a back board.

Larson said Pate will be held overnight for observation at St. Joseph Hospital in Bryan. "They will also take a few X-rays of his lower spine as a precaution," he said.

A short circuit in an underground cable blacked out all Corps area dormitories Tuesday afternoon, causing problems for both cadets and maintenance workers.

Bob Kennedy, corps commander, said that the Corps was able to maintain its study conditions in spite of the unlit night.

"We maintained our Call to Quarters conditions by opening up the Trigon and Duncan Dining Hall for studying," he said. He added that freshmen and sophomores were required to study in one of the two buildings.

Meanwhile, several air pumps were required to relieve the high temperatures underground where workers repaired the cable.

Norman Hays, who supervised the team of seven workers, said that the cable was welded together, causing problems in rewiring.
