

Council to plan funding projects

College Station will receive approximately $227,000 in federal revenue sharing funds this year but the city council remains undecided on specific uses for the money.

During its meeting last Thursday, the council heard proposals which included funding a full-time police officer for the A&M Consolidated school district, a plastic "bubble" cover, improvements to Nimitz Street, a street-stripping machine, sidewalks on Lawyer and Holleman streets, and drainage in Dexter Park.

The council will make its final decision on how the money on how the money is to be spent at its Sept. 28 meeting.

The full-time officer for the A&M Consolidated school district will cost about $14,963, says City Manager North Bardell.

The officer would work daily teaching school children about the new Safety City project. He also would be working on the school campus lecturing, counseling and training schoolguards. Bardell said the officer would aid in the suppression of drug and alcohol abuse, as well.

Another item that has been proposed is a pool cover which would be used to allow swimming during cold weather. It could be used on Adamson Pool or the planned pool at Thomas Park.

The pool cover would cost about $14,000 and would have a 10-year lifetime, according to a parks department spokesman.

The cover is a plastic dome supported by air from blowers.

Some council members said they doubted that wintke of the pool will justify the expense. But others pointed out that the pools cost more than $300,000 and the cover simply provides year-around use for these facilities.

Consol to study school addition

A bond issue to finance a new elementary school may be in the planning for the A&M Consolidated school district, says Rodney C. Hill, chairman of the Long-Range Planning Committee for the district.

The committee met briefly with the Board of Education Friday afternoon, asking for a "needs assessment" for the district. Enrollment projections and current optimum enrollment figures for each school also were requested.

Hill said there is a prospect for a bond issue in April of next year. Enrollment in the elementary schools has been increasing yearly at a steady rate of five percent.

"Even if a third elementary school is built, then by 1980 all three schools would be full," said Hill.

Presently, both elementary schools are well over the optimum enrollment.

The next step in planning for a possible bond issue is approval from the superintendent and his staff. Hill hopes to take a "logical step by step" approach in preparation for the bond issue. This would include an analysis of population trends in other school districts as compared to consolidated, and estimates of planning and construction time. Also included would be a preliminary estimate of inflation.

"The last bond issue, inflation went up and we were faced with a 2-year-budget," Hill said.

Easy Rider

Bob Sebree, a freshman in the College of Liberal Arts, has his own way of going to and from classes. He rides his unicycle from Scandia Apartments to classes every morning.

Sebree claims riding a unicycle around campus is easier than riding a bicycle because people just get out of his way and stare.

Smithsonian presentation, party held for 'All in the Family' chairs

United Press International
WASHINGTON — If you doubt that television has become a force in American life, you should have been at the Smithsonian when the Watergate judge and a former presidential candidate came in homage to a chair — the one Archie Bunker sat in.

Archie's chair — and Edith's too — became museum artifacts in a plastic cage. They were presented Tuesday night to the Museum of History and Technology by television entrepreneur Norman Lear, who created "All In The Family."

Smithsonian Secretary S. Dillon Ripley, accepting on behalf of the institution, called the chairs "part of the nation's cultural legacy."

High blood pressure prevented Carroll O'Connor, who portrays Archie, from making the flight to Washington.

Jean Stapleton, Archie's wife, came in person and said she was tickled that even the Smithsonian considered Edith real and important.

Earlier, members of the cast met President Carter at the White House.

At the party, a Smithsonian official confided that the question whether to accept so trifling an artifact with so large a ceremony raised an internal dispute within the institution.

Opponents said it was all well if the museum wanted to do a scholarly collection on the role of television in acknowledging a cultural phenomenon, showed no dignity to start with commotion over a pair of chairs.
