Scholarship awarded

Patrick W. Kingsbury has been selected as recipient of a scholarship by the Common Carrier Conference-Irregular Route Carriers for the second consecutive year. Kingsbury is a graduate student in the College of Business Administration.

Ag economics major bound for Australia

Timothy Burt, a graduate student of agricultural economics, has been awarded a Graduate Fellowship from the Rotary International for the 1979-80 academic year. The award will underwrite the full cost of study abroad, paying for intensive language instruction, travel, lodging and food, in addition to tuition, books, and laboratory fees. Applicants for awards are evaluated on their ambassadorial as well as scholarly potential.

O'Connor to be recognized

Dr. Rod O'Connor, director of First Year Chemistry Programs, will receive an Alumni Achievement Award from Southeast Missouri State University at ceremonies to be held on their campus Oct. 13.

O'Connor completed his bachelor of science degrees in chemistry, mathematics and physics at Southeast Missouri State in three years, graduating in 1955 with an all-A record, the only alumnus to do so in the 100-year history of the school. He completed his work for a doctorate in physical-organic chemistry two and one-half years later at the University of California at Berkeley. He is the author of several books and technical papers and has received four teaching awards, including a 1978 national award from the Manufacturing Chemists Association.

Carter appointed

Dr. Neville L. Carter has been named head of geophysics at Texas A&M, announced Geosciences Dean Earl F. Cook.

Carter was formerly an earth and space science professor at State University of New York-Stony Brook. He has also taught at Yale University and was a research geologist with Shell Oil Co.

Carter replaces Professor Anthony F. Gangi, who has been the acting head of the Geophysics Department since 1976.

Carter replaces Professor Anthony F. Gangi, who has been the acting head of the Geophysics Department since 1976.

Carter earned a doctorate from the University of California-Los Angeles in 1962. He completed undergraduate work at Pomona (Calif.) College and master's degree work at UCLA. His research includes studies of the flow in the earth's upper mantle, geothermal energy, crystalline rock behavior as it applies to earthquakes and radioactive waste isolation.

Woodcock resigns to teach

Professor David Woodcock has resigned, effective Jan. 1, 1979, as head of the department of Architecture at Texas A&M to return to full-time teaching. The announcement was made by Architecture and Environmental Design Dean Raymond D. Reed.

Woodcock has led the department for the past five years. A search committee has been appointed by Reed to recommend a successor for Woodcock.

President's Scholars include high school seniors

Forty Texas high school seniors have been named President's Scholars at Texas A&M. The honor is bestowed annually to students with outstanding scholastic, civic and leadership abilities. President's Scholars receive a $6,000, four-year scholarship upon enrollment at Texas A&M.

Recipients are elected by Texas A&M's Scholarships Committee from nominations by Texas high school principals.

Robert M. Logan, director of student aid, said recipients rank in the top of their high school classes and rank high nationally in their National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test and Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores.

The President's Scholar program was begun in 1967 to keep Texas' brightest high school graduates in the state for their university educations.

Patricia Hearst seeks clemency

SAN FRANCISCO — Jailed heiress Patricia Hearst has sent a signed formal petition seeking clemency to President Carter, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

Hearst's action followed a request by Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., and 47 other House members Friday that Miss Hearst's sentence be substituted for time already served and that she be released from prison.

The Chronicle said Miss Hearst's clemency petition should be delivered to the Justice Department's pardon attorney, John Stanish, Monday morning by Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., and Ryan, who represents the district where the Hearst family lives.

The pardon attorney's office is the first step in any clemency action before reaching Carter. The newspaper noted Carter has granted only three clemency requests out of 400,500 considered in the 21 months he has been in office.

The congressional request was made to Attorney General Griffin Bell in a letter noting Hearst has already spent 18 months behind bars.

In an earlier letter to his colleagues, Ryan said he had made a personal investigation of the case after Hearst had written him to ask that he visit her.

He said his own conclusion to seek her release had been "heavily influenced" by the comments of retired FBI agent Charles Bates, who was Hearst's "pursuer and captor."

"In the end, Hearst is a normal, stable and lively young woman of 24 who reminds me very much of my own daughter Patty, and who is almost exactly the same age," Ryan wrote.

"I can tell you with certainty that her incarceration will produce no more 'correction' or 'rehabilitation,'" he said. "She is as capable of living in a normal society as much as I am, or you are. The only consideration left is the amount of revenge which society must extract from Miss Hearst," he wrote.

Ryan said both he and Bates believe that "justice is best served by her release."
