Judge rejects suit against FBI

United Press International
OKLAHOMA CITY — A federal judge has dismissed two counts of a lawsuit filed by the family of Karen Silkwood claiming Kerr-McGee nuclear plant officials and FBI agents conspired against her civil rights.

U.S. District Judge Frank Theis' decision Monday did not affect a third count, which charges Kerr-McGee's negligence caused Silkwood's injury from plutonium exposure.

The original suit claimed the violation of civil rights of Ms. Silkwood and other Kerr-McGee employees who had filed complaints against the company under the Atomic Energy Act. The lawsuit charged they had been subjected to wiretapping, intimidation, surveillance and harassment.

The dismissal reduces the suit's damages request to $100,000 since the Silkwood family was asking $30,000 each for the two dismissed counts.

Silkwood attorneys, however, have filed an application requesting the damages be amended to $2.5 million. A ruling is pending on that request.

The dismissal throws out the Silkwood allegation that Kerr-McGee officials, including 23 executives, trustee members and employees, and two FBI agents conspired against her civil rights.

Theis ruled their civil rights could not have been violated because they do not constitute a definable class of people protected in the governing civil rights Act of 1971.

The law, originally passed to protect blacks, has been amended to include other minority groups, but not labor unions.

Silkwood family attorney Jim Ikard said Monday an appeal will be filed on the dismissals.

Dance classes offered at A&M

By KEITH TAYLOR
Battalion Reporter

Saturday night fever may be keeping the nation, but four campus organizations prove there is more to dance than disco.

The Aggie Allemanders, a square dance club, has been on campus for a year and a half. Julie Deitch, club president, said the club offers lessons each semester for a $13 fee. The class for this semester is closed, but another will be offered in the spring. Club membership is still open to any experienced square dancer. The club has class starting at 7 p.m. and a workshop at 9 p.m. on Mondays in room 224 of the Memorial Student Center. Deitch said visitors are welcome.

Glen Green is the caller for the club. He said there are about 6 million square dancers in the United States. He said the Allemanders membership has been steadily increasing and the club now has 60 members.

Square dancing has been declared the national folk dance and has had a commemorative stamp made in its honor according to Green.

Ballet, jazz and modern dance are taught Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday nights at 7 p.m. in room 266 of G. Rollie White Coliseum, by the Dance Arts Society. Instructor Diane Cater said anyone can join for a $15 fee that covers the three nightly classes. She said the society offers beginner and advanced classes in all three types of dance.

Cater said the society also offers a class for men on Mondays at 8 p.m. She said the men's class teaches the basics of dance, exercises, and how to coordinate hand and feet.

The Social Dance Club teaches dance styles including ballroom, fifties, country-western and disco. The club meets Wednesdays at 7 p.m. in room 266 of G. Rollie White coliseum. Instructor Pam Morton said the club rotates the type of dance taught for every meeting. She said the club averages about 75 people at each meeting.

Morton also teaches dance for the physical education department at Texas A&M. She said the P.E. department offers courses in square, folk, tap, and modern dancing. The department also offers a social dance class that is usually filled the first day or registration, Morton said.

Free University offers a Social and recreational class with sections meeting on Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. in room 201 of the Memorial Student Center.

Katie Blute, chairman of Free University, said, "The class covers a little bit of everything." This includes waltz, fox-trot, disco, and country-western. She also said that the class was so popular, registration had to be closed.
