Israel puts off peace pact vote

United Press International

The Israeli cabinet recessed after a lengthy debate Tuesday and postponed a "fateful decision" on whether to approve a peace treaty with Egypt. Government sources said President Carter appealed Israel to endorse the pact.

The 17-member cabinet completed half the deliberations on the draft treaty and decided to recess until this morning after 11 hours of debate that began Monday night.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman briefed the parliamentary Foreign Affairs and Defense Committee on the draft pact immediately after the special cabinet session.

Israeli Finance Minister Simcha Erlich told reporters afterward that cabinet session was running so long because "these are fateful decisions and difficult subjects." It shaped up as one of the longest cabinet sessions in Israeli history.

He said when asked whether the cabinet will approve the treaty, "hope so, yes."

Energy Minister Yitzhak Modai, one of four known hardliners in the cabinet, indicated the ministers were grappling over whether the treaty would give Israel sufficient security or if it contained inherent dangers to Israel's future.

Modai was asked if the treaty as presented by Dayan is acceptable. "If the goal is peace, then it is acceptable," he said. "But if this is a tactical step with great dangers that leave peace in question, then it is unacceptable. In the draft that we have today there are some points that may indicate this."

Modai described the cabinet meeting in Begin's office as "very thorough and very lengthy."

Erlich said he thought $4 billion would be enough to pay for Israel's military and civilian withdrawal from the Sinai desert under the terms of the proposed treaty. The United States reportedly would pay the bill. Israeli opposition Labor party leader Shimon Peres said in a national radio interview the United States has become the most important partner of the tripartite treaty talks at the expense of the independence of Egypt and Israel.

Carter, in a cable relayed by the U.S. Embassy, asked Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and his 17 ministers to endorse the treaty drawn up under his mediation between the Egyptian and Israeli delegations to the Washington peace talks, government sources said.

The pact, based on the Camp David frameworks for peace worked out by Carter in September, would be the first treaty ever between an Arab state and Israel.

Israeli sources said Begin was unhappy with some of the provisions in the draft and will seek some amendments during the special cabinet session that might go over until Wednesday.

But the sources said Israel probably will not reject the draft despite the amendments that could be attached to the nine-article document.

The semi-official Egyptian newspaper Al-Ahram, in its first edition Tuesday, described amendments sought by President Anwar Sadat as "basic." But in later editions, the newspaper backtracked, dropping the word "basic" and saying "certain amendments" instead.

Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said the demand did not amount to a rejection of the draft and expressed confidence Egyptian-Israeli differences can be resolved.

In Washington, U.S. officials said they expected the pact to be initiated this week despite Sadat's request that the treaty call for progress on solving the Palestinian problem.

Tentative plans were also being made for Carter to travel to the Middle East as soon as the pact is initiated.

Snipers active in Beirut suburbs

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Shellfire and sniper activity in suburban Beirut Tuesday jeopardized government and Arab efforts to cement a cease-fire between Syrian troops and rightist Christian militias.

The Christian Phalangist Radio accused the Syrians of starting the latest firefight and said Syrian troops of the Arab peacekeeping force unleashed shellfire early Tuesday on suburban Dikwaneh. It also said road traffic in the area was paralyzed by sniper fire.

The broadcast insisted rightist irregulars were respecting the cease-fire, despite repeated Syrian violations.

Residents of the Christian southeastern suburbs of Beirut said snipers and occasional rocket-propelled grenade shots hit the neighborhood Monday. Militia officials charged the Syrians also had unleashed their first extended artillery barrage since the Oct. 7 cease-fire against the Christian resort town of Bickfaya.

Mules laden with Blue Maguey pinas on their way to Cuervo's La Rojena plant.

Since 1795 we've gathered our Blue Magueys for Cuervo Gold the gentle way. It's the old way. And still the best.

At Cuervo we know that there is only one way to make Cuervo Gold perfect. The way we've been doing it for more than 180 years.

That's why people still nurture our fields of Blue Maguey plants. And why mules are still used to bring these precious plants to our distillery. For tradition is still the most important ingredient in Cuervo Gold.

This is what makes Cuervo Gold truly special. Neat, on the rocks, with a splash of soda, in a perfect Sunrise or Margarita, Cuervo Gold will bring you back to a time when quality ruled the world.

Cuervo. The Gold standard since 1795.
