Storey receives teacher award

Dr. J. Benton Storey of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, the newly-elected president of the American Society for Horticultural Sciences Southern Region, has been selected as winner of the prestigious L.M. Ware Distinguished Teaching Award.

The Ware Award, endowed by a famed Auburn University horticulturist, recognizes outstanding performance in teaching horticultural sciences. Storey's selection for the award means that he is the top teacher in an area that covers the southwestern and southeastern states.

Storey, a professor in the Texas A&M University Horticultural Sciences Department, is chairman of the graduate instructions committee.

Visiting professor Plum wins award

Charles W. Plum, a visiting professor in the College of Business Administration at Texas A&M University, has received the Award of Merit for Teaching from the local chapter of Gamma Sigma Delta, the honor society of agriculture. Plum received the award during a recent initiation and awards convocation by the honor society.

Vice president for accounting and management systems for the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, Plum has been a visiting professor of accounting at Texas A&M since 1976.

Dr. Dwayne A. Suter, associate dean of the College of Agriculture, said that Plum is unique because previous winners of the award had long experience at Texas A&M.

R.W. Loan named animal health leader

Raymond W. Loan, associate dean for research and professor in Texas A&M University's College of Veterinary Medicine, has been named assistant director for animal health of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, effective Feb. 1.

Loan will continue his responsibilities in the College of Veterinary Medicine and be located there as he assumes his expanded duties with the Experiment Station. Also, Loan will continue to coordinate research programs with the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Loan joined the College of Veterinary Medicine as a professor of microbiology and parasitology and associate dean for research in 1978.

Dean Kunkel honored by real estate group

Dean of Agriculture H.O. Kunkel was honored recently by the Texas Real Estate Research Center for service to that organization from 1971 to 1978. Center Director A.B. Wooten presented Kunkel with a resolution from the center's advisory committee. The resolution cited Kunkel for his "sincere desire to build ties between the academic community and the real estate industry of Texas. The advisory committee and the research center appreciate Dean Kunkel's effort, support and dedication on behalf of the real estate industry and the people of Texas."

Wooten also presented Kunkel with a plaque expressing the gratitude of the staff for the dean's administrative assistance and guidance.

A&M gets $2,500 from 3 ASSE groups

Texas A&M University has received $2,550 in grants from three state-affiliated segments of the American Society of Safety Engineers. The funds will support scholarships and program development in industrial hygiene and safety engineering. The checks were presented at the eighth professional conference of ASSE and American Hygiene Association at Texas A&M.

They were accepted by Dr. Richard Thomas, acting dean of Engineering, and Dr. Richard Konzan of the Industrial Engineering Department's Industrial Hygiene and Safety Engineering Division.

Holland elected head of Phi Kappa Phi

Dr. Charles D. Holland, head of the Chemical Engineering Department, has been elected president of the Texas A&M University Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, a national honor society.

Holland and other officers for the 1979-1980 school year will be installed at a banquet May 1 when more than 400 students and a small group of faculty and staff are initiated, said Dr. Horace Van Cleave, the current president.

Phi Kappa Phi has a university-wide membership organized to recognize and encourage good scholarship. Student membership is drawn from a highly-selected group of juniors, seniors and graduate students.

5 on A&M faculty elected to vet board

Five Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine faculty members have been elected to the board of directors of the Texas Veterinary Medical Association.

Serving three year terms are Dr. Everett Murl Bailey Jr., Dr. Charles D. Brown and Dr. Walter F. Juliff, all of College Station. Elected to two year terms are Dr. J.H. Denton of College Station and Dr. Leon Russell of Bryan.

Mrs. Sanders is head of TAES agents

Mrs. Judy K. Sanders of Bryan is the new state agent (home economics) for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. She is filling the position that was vacated recently by the retirement of Miss Claudia Williams, who held the position for the past 11 years.

As state agent, Sanders will directly supervise the district agents in home economics in the 14 districts of Texas. She will be responsible for personnel and program development in all counties where there are home economics personnel or programs.

A native of Tarrant County, she grew up in Lamb County and is a graduate of Springlake-Earth High School at Earth. She holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in home economics education from Texas Tech University, and is completing a Ph.D. in adult and extension education at Texas A&M University.

She holds membership in the American and Texas Home Economics Associations, Epsilon Sigma Phi, National 4-H Agents Association, and also has been active in Texas State Nutrition Council, Texas and National Associations of Extension Home Economists.

The new state agent began her extension career in 1964 as assistant county agent at Lubbock, a position she held through 1967. She served as extension agent for the Expanded Nutrition Program from 1968 through 1974, also at Lubbock.

Viets say Chinese building

United Press International BANGKOK, Thailand — Vietnam charged Tuesday it was not withdrawing its troops "stepping up its aggression" into southern military sources said Peking shipping fresh troops to the border a move that could foreshadow a retreat or renewed attacks.

Vietnam, breaking a 15-hundred-mile-long announced truce, Chinese claim did not square battlefield conditions and drawl talk was "a trick."

"At this time Peking is pouring more Chinese troops into Vietnam, stepping up its aggression and its troops are frantically clearing Vietnamese villages," Vietnam News Agency said.

Military analysts claim that Chinese troops had moved up reinforcements during the weekend, increasing the size of the force as a prelude to withdrawal. Military sources said the reinforcements began going into the Sunday, and the buildup continued Tuesday.

"This is a very critical phase operation for the Chinese," military expert with Vietnam experience. "The Vietnamese really go for broke now, and it is possible the Chinese just won't get out."

It took the Chinese 70 days out of India after their 1962 invasion, and that was with a cease and negotiations, an intelligence analyst in Bangkok said.

And all available information Vietnam made it appear leaders were not even considering cease-fire.

"Every village is a battle Radio Hanoi said in an editorial Tuesday. "Smash the Chinese aggressors."

Nor was it certain China intended to withdraw.

"In fact, the whole announcement of a withdrawal seems a strange, given the secrecy Chinese operation so far," source. "It could be a false source."

Hanoi resumed its daily broadcasts Monday night after a 48-hour silence.

The latest communication, 2,535 Chinese troops were in action in fighting all along a 450-mile-wide frontier.

Campaigning politicians at A&M will not be censored

By PHYLLIS PONDER
Battalion Reporter

Despite rumors to the contrary, politicians campaigning at Texas A&M University will not be denied the right to campaign on campus because of political affiliation.

A spokesman for the Political Forum had heard there was to be an issue discussed at Monday night's meeting of the MSC Council concerning the limitations or qualifications to be met by a political speaker in order for him to speak at Texas A&M. Ray Daniels, MSC council president, said there was no such issue on the agenda.

If there is any limitations of speakers, it is because of scheduling problems, Daniels said.

There are guidelines set by the MSC Council, Daniels said, that are designed not only to benefit the committee responsible for the speaker but also to benefit the speaker. For example, the MSC Council works with the Aggie Cinema, the MSC Basement Coffeehouse and other organizations to make sure these groups have nothing scheduled that could possibly distract students from the speaker.

"If a good movie is showing across at the Aggie Cinema, it will draw people away," Daniels said. Whenever this problem of conflicting interests arises, the MSC Council or organization sponsoring the speaker tries to negotiate another date for the speech.

If the politician is campaigning, he must give a week's notice to set up a date to speak.

However, a politician being paid for his speech is usually scheduled early in the semester at the request of a student organization.

The council places no restrictions on the speech itself, Daniels added. "From a philosophical standpoint, it is the job of the council to present all viewpoints and let the student decide which viewpoint he prefers," Daniels said.

Resurgence of Islam causes Israel alarm over treaty security

JERUSALEM — Despite President Carter's assertion that the ferences separating Israel and Egypt are minor, Israeli government sources say Cairo's extreme demands violate the Camp David accord and may turn a peace treaty into a recipe for war.

Yet these same sources believe the peace talks are at a pause allow for reflection by all sides. But it is not a crisis, just part of negotiating process.

Why the delay in reaching the agreement that seemed so after the first Camp David talks in September?

One reason appears to be the fear that President Anwar Sadat some day share the fate of his friend, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi formerly of Iran.

"These are regimes of one bullet," one source commented. What with the resurgence of Islam around the world, Israeli Sadat's successors may declare a peace treaty void immediately taking office, and Israel would have no place to turn.

Hence Israel's concern about Article 6 of the draft treaty, which effect says an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty has priority over Egyptian defense pacts with other Arab states.

The Arabs have always claimed Israel to be the aggressor, ever the outset of the 1973 war. Fact is, Israel was woefully unprepared that battle, and as a result suffered heavy casualties at the outset.

To guard against this, the government is trying to plug loopholes to guarantee that a new regime in Egypt will not be able exploit faulty treaty language in order to nullify the pact.

As for the Palestinian entity envisioned in the Camp David accords, Israelis note that not a single Palestinian Arab notable from West Bank of the Jordan or Gaza Strip has supported the plan.

They argue that there will be ample pressure from Washington to make good on the Camp David agreements and to sign an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty tied to such uncertainties, as Cairo demands would be folly.
