Ags beat Hoosiers

By SEAN PETTY
Battalion Sports Staff

Just think what it would be like to know almost everything your opponent was going to do in a game. What if you knew their strengths and weaknesses as if you were one of their coaches? What an advantage. What would it be like?

Well, just ask Texas A&M softball coach Bill Galloway and the Lady Aggies who played as if they knew each Indiana Hoosier player personally in defeating the visiting Hoosiers in the Lady Aggies' home openers, 4-1, 6-2.

The truth is, Galloway and the Lady Aggies did know Indiana's strengths and weaknesses. Galloway was assistant coach Hoosiers for three years before coming to Texas A&M in the fall.

"We were really nervous these games," Galloway said. "Our girls were really pumped ready to go. It feels so good the school you came from."

"We practiced all year (Tuesday) against everyone they knew they did well and it helped us."

The Aggies beat the Hoosiers playing good, solid, smart. They left few runners on base and played heads-up defense throughout both games.

The Lady Aggies' outstanding defensive play was exemplified in the final inning of the first game when they were leading the Hoosiers with two women on base. Hoosiers and the tying run on plate. The Indiana player hit fly to left which was fielded by Nancy Sullivan who then threw ball to catcher Rhonda Reese made the tag on a Hoosier. Reese immediately threw to third. Liz Zemanek tagged the Hoosier for the third and final out of the game. Shannon Murray, winning pitcher for the Aggies, shut the Hoosiers down in the second game.

"We made Indiana field and make the big throws and bunts and they just didn't get them," Galloway said. "I'm proud of these girls and these wins. Indiana has a couple of All-Americans and a great team."

Galloway has already shown he and the Aggie Ladies can set an impressive fall record of which set a new school record spring record of 10-5.
