Army's solar-power unit near April completion date

United Press International
SAN ANTONIO — The first solar-powered Army Reserve Center in the 13-state Fifth Army area will be ready for occupancy in April at Seagoville 30 miles southeast of Dallas, U.S. Army has announced.

Fifth-Army Headquarters at Fort Sam Houston said the Corps of Engineers' Fort Worth District announced completion was near for the 300-man center, which occupies more than 33,300 feet in two buildings.

The $2.3 million complex will house the headquarters of the 807th Medical Brigade, three of its subordinate units — the 329th, 566th and 831st Medical Detachments — and Company C, 980th Engineering Battalion of the 420th Engineer Brigade.

Dedication tentatively was scheduled for May.

The solar system, mounted on the main building, but serving both structures, provides heating, cooling and hot water. There are 554 solar collector flat-plate panels on the roof, each 20.72 square feet in size, with a total collector area of 11,473 square feet.

The system's extensive and complex monitoring and control system is regulated by computer temperature sensors, the system and there is a conventional system for use in periods of sunshine.

Agency to test CS students

Some elementary and secondary students in the A&M Consolidated School District will participate April 10-12 in Phase II of a Texas Education Agency assessment project.

The project is designed to aid TEA administrators in regional and statewide planning of education curriculums.

TEA personnel will randomly select the students in the fifth, eighth and eleventh grades who will take the tests which measure knowledge of economics education.
