

School can be more than class books

Practice in fighting a wide variety of fires is included in the annual Fireman's Training School's curriculum. A team of firemen (above) moves in against the stifling heat of a burning pit of crude oil. Another firefighter gets both a drink of water and a shower from the same high pressure firehose (right). After a long hot afternoon of service, the firemen's equipment (below) seems as ready for a rest as the students themselves.
