Mistakes maul Aggie

By SEAN PETTY
Battalion Sports Editor
There's a place in the world for a gambler.

— Dan Fogelberg

The gamblers met at Rice Stadium Saturday night. One was a young, talented coach from Texas A&M and the other was a seasoned coach from the mountains of Utah.

And, as is usually the case when two gamblers meet, only one leaves with all the chips. LaVell Edwards of Brigham Young was the man counting his chips when the final gun sounded as BYU edged Tom Wilson and the Texas Aggies, 18-17 in an exciting, tough, well-played football game.

The chips had been stacked against Edwards all night as the Aggies dominated the game from the start on offense and defense.

Aggie head coach Tom Wilson's gamble came in the fourth quarter when the Aggies were leading 17-10 with 5:40 left in the game. It was fourth and one and Wilson decided to stack his chips and go for the first down instead of punt. A&M quarterback Mike Mosley never got the ball and BYU ended up with it.

"The count was on one and he (center Preston Dickson) snapped it on down," Mosley said. "My hands were relaxed and I wasn't expecting it at all."

"We just fell apart in some crucial situations."

That summed up the entire game. Wilson echoed the same words; the Aggies folded under some pressure situations.

"We made too many mistakes at the wrong time," a dejected Wilson said in the locker room. "We lost our poise when we couldn't put the ball in from the one-yard line (in the second quarter)."

Although the Aggies made some bad mistakes, they never gave up.

They showed enthusiasm and aggressiveness throughout the entire hot, humid night.

"We fought 'em for 60 minutes," Wilson said. "I'm proud of my team."

The feeling was the same throughout the Aggie locker room. They couldn't understand how they could lose a game they had so firmly ruled for four quarters. They almost doubled BYU's total offense output with 404 yards to the Cougars 217. They allowed only 52 yards total offense the first half.

But they also led BYU in fumbles. The Ags fumbled six times and lost four.

"There were all kinds of turning points," Wilson said. "Nobody was ever in control of the game and I certainly didn't think we had won the game when I put freshmen (Gary Kubiak, Johnny Hector and the other substitutes in."

"It was a hot, humid night and Mosley, Dickey and the rest of the offense needed a rest. Mosley and Dickey were both cramping and needed a break."

Mosley had one of his best plays leading the Ags. The junior running back completed 9-of-11 passes for 125 yards and no interceptions.

He moved the Aggies effectively running the roll out pass to the line, hitting his primary and secondary receivers or running wide receivers. His passing game needed to. His passing game needed to win the game from 51 yards but it was not to be.

Another bright spot was David Appleby who responded to all the preseason pressure by ending the evening with 44 yards.

"I knew I had to come out with a good job or I would lose my job," Appleby said. "I really felt everything fell into place."

"David did a tremendous job," Wilson said. "The game was a big question mark in the summer and last spring. I really did the job. I hope he stays up because the kicking game is important."

It was a tough loss for the Aggies to a good team. The Ags should be everyone that they have seen play some aggressive, team play this year. And if they can win the mistakes and win some of the gambles, they should be dangerous.
