

Carter's diplomacy gets test

United Press International
WASHINGTON — The "firm diplomacy" President Carter said he would employ to deal with the Soviet troops in Cuba is getting its first real test with the return to Washington of Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Dobrynin has been in Russia, where his father recently died, but returned Sunday and was called to meet Monday with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. The meeting signaled heightened negotiations over the troop issue that is clouding prospects for SALT II ratification and U.S.-Soviet relations generally.

The United States had requested Dobrynin's early return in order to push forward with the "firm diplomacy" President Carter said he planned to use to resolve the issue of the Soviet combat brigade from Cuba.

A Soviet correspondent at the daily State Department news briefing last week hinted his country might propose a withdrawal of U.S. troops from the naval base at Guantanamo Bay in return, but such a proposal is likely to fall on deaf ears.

The spokesman said the United States has made clear over the years that the only American military installation on communist territory is not negotiable, and that position is unchanged.

LONDON — Curly hair may be in style everywhere else, but not on the Mansfield Town soccer club.

"You won't play if you have your hair permed," was the simple warning issued during the weekend by the team's new manager, Mick Jones.

Asked why he imposed the rule, Jones had an equally simple answer. "It detracts from a manly image," he said.

LONDON — Britain threw up one of the stiffest security screens in years Monday around its last-ditch peace conference on Zimbabwe Rhodesia bringing together delegations from the Salisbury government and the two parties which have waged a guerrilla war against it.

Rhodesia declared itself unilaterally independent in 1965 under a white-ruled regime rather than surrender power constitutionally to the black majority. The guerrilla war broke out in 1972 and has continued through the assumption of power this year by the nation's first black Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, under an internal majority settlement.

The officials said if the peace attempt fails, the present bush war might well erupt into an international conflict with probable Soviet, Cuban and South African involvement.

The talks, pushed for by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, will try to get the guerrilla groups to accept a peace settlement and a new independence constitution, which would return the country to legality and lift U.N. sanctions.

LONDON — Gold pushed up once again on the London and Zurich markets Monday and one Swiss dealer predicted it could reach $400 by the end of the year. The dollar opened marginally lower on most money markets.

Gold opened at $337.625 in Zurich, compared with $330.00 at Friday's close. In London, it opened at $336.625 compared with $331.375 Friday.

The dollar opened in London at $2.249 against the pound, compared with $2.25 at Friday's close.

In Zurich, the dollar opened at 1.62705 Swiss francs, against 1.6275 at Friday's close. In Frankfurt, it was 1.8045 compared with 1.8085 Friday.

TEHRAN, Iran — Kurdish rebels fighting for autonomy invited 28 government soldiers to ceremonies honoring the Tehran regime's victory in the battle and then shot and killed them, Iran's chief of staff said today.

Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Hossein Shaker told the Kayhan International newspaper the massacre of the troops took place "recently" but gave no details of where the killing was carried out.

Iran's council leader dies

United Press International
TEHRAN, Iran — Ayatollah Syed Mahmoud Taleghani, head of Iran's ruling Islamic Revolutionary Council and the nation's second most powerful figure, died in his sleep Monday. He was 68.

Thousands of Iranians poured into the streets of the capital mourning Taleghani's death.

Doctors said Taleghani died of heart failure after suffering severe chest pains Sunday night. He had been ill frequently since he was released from prison in 1978 by Ayatollah Reza Pahlavi.

Taleghani was considered a political moderate and likely to become Iran's first president. He was seen only to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in power. It was only after Taleghani's death Monday that the secretive Revolutionary Council, Iran's supreme decision-making body, announced that Taleghani was its head.

Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan declared a public holiday Monday and a three-day mourning period to mark the death of his close friend.
