

Pair charged with peeping into local sorority house

Two men were arrested for disorderly conduct following an incident at a sorority house early Thursday morning. According to police reports, two men were peeping in the back window of the Chi Omega House at 1601 Athens St. in College Station at 1:15 a.m. The sorority housemother said one sorority member called College Station police while another talked to the men through the closed door until police arrived about 20 minutes later. Stewart P. Daffron, 21, of 1301 Highway 30 in College Station, and Jim Hembree Jr., 28, of 1600 Finfeather Dr. in Bryan, were charged with disorderly conduct in connection with the incident. Only Hembree was jailed; he was later released on a $55 bond.

Aggies tour Panhandle

By JETTIE STEEN
Battalion Reporter

In an effort to provide students with a look at businesses and careers in agriculture, the animal science department at Texas A&M University has set up a weekend study excursion in addition to its annual week-long field trips. Thirty graduate and undergraduate students left Thursday night for Amarillo on the Panhandle Agribusiness Field Study Trip and will tour the High Plains today, Saturday and Sunday. Dr. Howard Hesby, associate professor of animal science and coordinator of the trip, said the group will be traveling more than 1,000 miles in University vans this weekend. "It's going to be a long busy trip but we ought to see some very interesting businesses," Hesby said. The group will drive all night, arriving in Amarillo by 7 a.m. today to visit the Texas Cattle Feeders headquarters for discussions with cattlemen. The students will also be visiting Iowa Beef Packers, the largest beef packing plant in the United States, the American Quarter Horse Association headquarters, a purebred Hereford ranch and various livestock feeding operations. Hesby said, "We had planned to stop at a cowhide tannery on Saturday morning, but they called me Monday and canceled because of an acid leak which destroyed the concrete flooring of the building. They are trying to rebuild it." Janice Brown, an animal science major and initiator of the field trip, said, "Last spring we traveled in South Texas one weekend so I told Dr. Hesby that this fall we ought to travel in my home area — what we call God's Country — or the Panhandle of Texas. "Dr. Hesby said OK and with the help of many communities, old Ags, businesses and my dad, we are taking the trip," Brown said. "There just isn't any way we could afford to go without all these folks' help. They stood behind us, so tonight we are leaving for the High Plains of Texas," Brown said. The animal science department also sponsors two annual trips — a statewide tour of Texas and an agribusiness field study trip.

Applications due by Oct. 1 for fellowship

Applications for Danforth Graduate Fellowships are being accepted in the General Studies Office on the first floor of the Harrington Center. Approximately 55-60 fellowships are awarded each year to college seniors who are nominated by their undergraduate colleges or universities. Another 35-40 awards are made across the nation to graduate students. The Danforth program is a one-year award but is normally renewable until completion of the advanced degree or a maximum of four years of graduate study, said Dr. Garland Bayliss, director of academic services at Texas A&M University. The fellowships are open to qualified students who have a serious interest in a career in college teaching and who plan to study in a graduate school in the United States for a Ph.D. in a field of study common to the liberal arts curriculum.

Aggies to head for Terlingua

A&M chili team aims at title

By STEVE CRITCHFIELD
Battalion Reporter

Once a year, the silence of the small West Texas ghost town of Terlingua is disrupted by a flurry of activity from civilization. Hungry, fun-loving onlookers and participants at the World Championship Chili Cooking Contest fill the streets. This year, the Aggie Chili Team will be amid the crowd. Team captain Clifford Dorn said the team accumulated the necessary points to enter the championship last Saturday at the State Chili Cook-off Championship — the Republic of Texas Chilympiad in San Marcos. The team placed second in showmanship out of 250 competing teams with its "Hullabaloo Chili." Dorn said the Terlingua event, scheduled for Nov. 3-4, requires a total of 12 points in showmanship or six points in chili cooking from Terlingua-sanctioned cook-offs. Each first place finish receives three points, second place, two, and third place, one. A chili cook-off takes place almost any weekend somewhere in Texas, Dorn said, and his 25-member team sometimes splits up to enter contests near hometowns of its members. This allows a greater chance to accumulate points. Dorn said the Aggie Chili Team has existed for almost two years and has placed in all but one of the contests it entered.
