

Singer files privacy action

United Press International
NEW YORK — Barbra Streisand has filed a $5 million suit against High Society Magazine, claiming her right to privacy was violated because the magazine obtained and published photographs of her nude above the waist.

The suit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, alleged the New York-headquartered magazine printed the photographs without her consent in the November issue, now in the process of being distributed.

She asked for an injunction against distribution.

Streisand, who lives in Los Angeles, said the photographs were "maliciously obtained" and violated her civil rights by exposing her to humiliation and public ridicule.

Darlings tryouts slated; Oct. 2 set as deadline

By GRETCHEN GARRETT
Battalion Reporter

Watch out baseball, here come the 1979-80 Diamond Darlings! If you're asking yourself, "What are the Diamond Darlings?" then you just don't know much about Aggie baseball.

The "Darlings" are bat girls for the Texas A&M baseball team, and they were the first girls' organization at A&M, sponsor Cheryl Phillips said.

Mrs. Troy C. Chandler started the Diamond Darlings in 1971. "There were only 12 girls the first year," she said. "I've been their sponsor every year except for the last two years."

Phillips was a member of the Darlings for two years and was captain for 1978-79.

Phillips said, "We are there to lend support to the team by attending all home games and by doing special promotional functions such as hosting activities in the Letterman's Lounge.

"At the games," she said, "the girls do the usual things like keeping bats out of the way, catching balls, etc., but we also make banners and do as much P.R. work for the team as possible."

The Diamond Darlings are chosen through two series of tryouts, Phillips said.

"The baseball team will do the preliminaries, and the finals will be conducted by a panel of judges made up of various people in the Administration office and some members of the Former Students Association."

She said that the girls will be judged on enthusiasm and athletic ability, although they won't be required to do anything more than catch and throw a few baseballs, and run around picking up bats.

"Anyone who wants to be in the Diamond Darlings should pick up an application in 809 Rudder Tower right away because the deadline is Oct. 2. There'll be a meeting sometime next week for all applicants to discuss when and where tryouts will be."

Applicants will be informed about the time and location of the meeting, Phillips said.

Aggies reap awards at Air Force camps

Texas A&M University Air Force ROTC cadets won 10 individual awards in summer field training across the United States.

Nine of the awards recognized the most outstanding member of each cadet flight, and are known as Vice Commandant's Awards.

One of the recipients, Charles E. Foster, Jr., an aerospace engineering major from Conroe, also received the Commandant's Award, the award for the outstanding cadet at his encampment at Lackland AFB in San Antonio.

Other Vice Commandant recipients at Lackland were Thomas C. Walker, history, San Antonio; David F. Garcia, management, Seguin; Star Smith, electrical engineering, Atascosa; and Craig W. Underhill, marketing, Houston.

Andrew R. Hermann, nuclear engineering major from Hampton, Va., received the award at Rickenbacker AFB, Ohio; Wes E. Klett, animal science, Hereford, at Vandenberg AFB, Calif., and Patrick A. Dixon, meteorology, Irving, at McConnell AFB, Kan.

Joel E. Malone, civil engineering, Universal City, was selected for the athletic award among all cadets in his phase at Lackland. The award is given to the cadet who best represents leadership in an athletic context.
