Two killed as train derails in Kansas

United Press International
LAWRENCE, Kan. — Amtrak's Southwest Limited jumped the tracks as it sped eastbound through the city for the first time Tuesday, killing at least two persons and injuring scores.

Sixteen of the 18 cars on the train derailed.

Authorities at first reported four fatalities but later said the bodies had been counted twice.

The train was making its eastbound run over the new route for the first time since budget-slashing forced it to merge routes with another train scheduled to be dropped from the Amtrak system.

By late morning, 46 persons were taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital, said Bob Campbell, a hospital spokesman. Eight of those were admitted, nine were released, and 29 were under observation.

The names of the two persons killed were not released.

The wreck tore up track for about 2,000 feet and dumped several cars down a slight ravine. At least seven cars and the engine flipped over on their sides. Many passengers were forced to crawl through broken windows to safety.

Campbell said a few persons aboard the train suffered burns from a fire which broke out in the car.

The train was enroute from Angeles to Chicago.

Until Monday, the Southwest Limited ran along a southern route on Santa Fe tracks through Lawrence, Kan. But with cutbacks in the train was merged Monday with the Lone Star from Chicago to Lawton, Kan, where it split. One headed south to Houston, and other sections headed west to Angeles.

Conflicting figures on the number of persons and crew members aboard at the time of the wreck given by authorities. Santa Fe officials counted 103 persons aboard the train. Amtrak officials counted 187 persons aboard the train.

Santa Fe officials said it was at least Wednesday before a single main line could be cleared. Clean-up operations were hindered by thick brush, inaccessibility, the ravine some of the equipment slid down.

Officials said they would begin work up to the more damaged equipment at the front of the train where the derailment apparently began with the three locomotives.
