Coach fired for mooning

United Press International

SAN ANTONIO — A J. High School football coach was fired for allegedly "mooning" a group of his colleagues, a superintendent confirms.

"I feel like this is inappropriate and has no place in the school," said North Side Independent Superintendent Ed Cody after firing of Sam Champion, 25.

Champion allegedly dropped pants briefly and exposed his buttocks to several persons attending coaching meeting at the school week.

Among the group were female coaches, one of whom complained to school authorities of Champion's actions.

A group of Jay football fans wants him rehired on grounds dismissal was excessive punishment.
