MSC takes on foreign look during organization's International Day

By LAURA CORTEZ
Battalion Reporter

The first floor of the MSC was a smorgasbord of foreign cultures Monday. Representatives of nine foreign student organizations displayed various articles from their homelands as part of International Day, sponsored by the International Student Organization.

Members of one organization, the Chinese Student Association, were on hand to demonstrate the art of Chinese writing, give instructions on how to use chopsticks, explain the art of Chinese face painting and answer questions about their culture.

Carlos Zuniga, a sophomore agricultural economics major from Guatemala, showed passers-by colorful pictures of his country and urged them to make a trip there someday. He said many former Texas A&M students live in his country.

Among other examples of Guatemalan craftsmanship, Zuniga proudly displayed a large machete, which he said he finds especially useful around Bonfire time.

The Organization of Arab Students presented a slide show depicting scenes from several Islamic lands, which Amer Kombargi, vice president of the organization, and Hakim Abu-Yasin, a member, explained and discussed with interested students.

Among the items displayed by this group were various articles of traditional Arab clothing.

Other groups represented at International Day were the Pakistanis, Puerto Ricans, Nicaraguans, Indonesians, Iranians and Europeans.

Nancy Simmang, president of the International Student Association, said the purpose of International Day was to let students know the organization exists, and especially to make the foreign students aware that "we are here to help them with any problems they may encounter."

She said the ISA works closely with the international adviser on campus, and assists foreign students with things such as finding housing and roommates, and answers questions they may have about banking, insurance and finding jobs.

The ISA is made up of six officers, 70 delegates representing the various foreign countries and a general assembly, which brings the total membership to about 400, Simmang said.

There are 1,184 foreign students on campus this semester, according to the roster at the admissions office.
