Former brewer wants OK on Iran beer production

United Press International
TEHRAN, Iran — A former beer brewer has asked the new Islamic regime for permission to start producing beer and other forbidden spirits for "non-Moslems and foreigners" in the country.

After last February's revolution, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini declared all alcoholic drinks "haram" — taboo — and revolutionary guardsmen began raiding hotels and restaurants throughout the country, destroying millions of dollars worth of beer, wines and liquor.

The Tehran Times said the brewery asked government officials and clergymen Tuesday for permission to reopen. The brewery said it had tried making a non-alcoholic malt beer, but the beverage failed to catch on, the newspaper said.

The brewery, which is now state-owned, said if it were allowed to go back into the alcohol business, it would stop black market smuggling of alcoholic drinks and this would also stop the flight of rials (Iran's currency) being spent on smuggling.

Speedie receives ROTC certificate

Texas A&M University senior John D. Speedie, of San Antonio, was presented the Army's Certificate of Achievement for saving the life of an Army ROTC cadet last summer at Fort Riley, Kan.

After finding the cadet delirious from heat exhaustion, Speedie, in summer field training at Fort Riley, used mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and other first aid techniques to keep the cadet alive until a medical evacuation helicopter arrived.

Speedie, scholastic officer and chaplain of Company F-2 in the Corps of Cadets, was presented the certificate by Army Third ROTC Region commander Brig. Gen. Richard S. Fye at a recent Corps briefing.

Todd taking criminal identification training

Irvin E. Todd of the College Station Police Department is participating in advanced criminal identification training at Texas A&M University.

The four-week course, conducted by the Law Enforcement and Security Training Division of the Texas Engineering Extension Service, a part of Texas A&M, trains students to obtain, preserve and use fingerprint and photographic evidence from a crime scene.

Engineer Vance named associate professor

John M. Vance has been named Dresser Industries Associate Professor of Mechanical Engineering for 1979-80 at Texas A&M University.

The professorship, announced by dean of engineering Robert H. Page, provides support for research, special studies, writing or other activities.

Vance, a registered professional engineer in Texas and Florida and a specialist in the dynamics of rotating machinery, is investigating an energy-storage system utilizing a macrame-tied rope flywheel. He hopes to solve instability problems in the gimbal-mounted system.

Till, '60, presents $4,000 to A&M

Michael V. Till, a Houston-based representative of Conoco Inc., presented $4,000 check to the Texas A&M University Pe-roleum Engineering Department.

Till, '60, and well engineering supervisor of production engineering services for Conoco made the presentation. He said the check represents contribution of $3,000 for scholarships and $1,000 in an unrestricted grant. Recipients of scholarships are selected by University.

Morse and Whiting awarded for service

Richard A. Morse and L. Whiting, two Texas A&M University petroleum engineering professors, received Danforth Service Awards at the national meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers.

Morse and Whiting were recognized for service, devotion and contributions to the society and people at Kentucky Petroleum Engineering Society.

Morse was vice president of the national chapter of SPE, 1960 and president in 1961. Whiting was director of the Texas Petroleum Research Committee, and now serves on the Interstate Oil Commission. He was also chairman of the petroleum engineering department at Texas A&M 1946-76.
