Earthquake aftershocks persist

United Press International
EL CENTRO, Calif. — Dozens of aftershocks — one of them rocking the building where Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was signing a disaster proclamation — persisted in the Imperial Valley up to a day after a destructive earthquake Monday did at least $15 million damage.
 "They're still coming," said Brown, as the second floor of the Imperial County Airport terminal quivered beneath him Tuesday.
 Brown cut short a presidential campaign tour in New England to fly to the agriculturally productive desert region just north of the Mexican border where Monday afternoon's quake was centered.
 Although the tremor caused widespread damage throughout the valley and across the border in Mexico, there were no deaths.
 About 100 people received injuries, mostly minor. Sixty people were treated for cuts and bruises in El Centro, Calexico and Brawley, and seven were treated for broken bones, hospital officials said.
 The quake registered 6.4 on the Richter scale, still technically a "moderate" quake by standards of seismologists, but it was the most powerful earthquake to strike the 48 contiguous states in eight years.
 The Caltech seismological laboratory in Pasadena said that as of late Tuesday afternoon — when the series of shocks began to wane — there had been six aftershocks of magnitude 5 or greater, 21 of magnitude 4 to 5, and hundreds of smaller shakes.
 Damage to the county services building alone was estimated at $1 million, and throughout the area there were cracked walls, ceilings, cracked roads, shattered windows and destruction to residential and industrial equipment.
 Downtown areas of the region looked like war zones, with plate glass in the streets.
 Horizontal and vertical cracks appeared in the earth dike walls of the All-American Canal, which carries the irrigation water vital to the region's farming economy.
 The water flow was "all but stopped" and 350 workers and bulldozers labored to restore the canal to functioning by weekend.
 Burrus, archaeologist in charge of the site, said the first part of the church's history was recorded in the mission and venerated in the region.

MD faces 2 charges concerning abortion

United Press International
OMAHA, Neb. — A doctor who induced an abortion resulting in a live birth and who subsequently declined to use extraordinary measures to save the infant's life has been charged with two felonies.
 Douglas County Attorney Donald Knowles Tuesday charged Dr. C.J. La Benz, 31, with committing an unlawful abortion and failure to care for a child aborted alive in the Sept. 6 incident at the University of Nebraska Medical Center.
 The 2-pound 9-ounce boy was found alive by a nurse on his mother's bed and died about 2 1/2 hours later.
 La Benz has said he and three other physicians decided against using extraordinary life-saving measures, such as a respirator or drugs.
 The doctor was booked at central police headquarters and taken before Municipal Judge Francis McLane, who released him on his promise to appear for a preliminary hearing Oct. 29.
 The charges say La Benz violated Nebraska's abortion law by performing an abortion "after the child had reached the stage of viability, there being no imminent danger to the life or health of mother of said unborn child."
 He charged he also failed to "employ reasonable steps in treatment of a child born alive as a chance of survival."
 La Benz has said he had estimated the abortion patient was 20 weeks pregnant and his estimate proved wrong.
 He said the infant probably been without oxygen for several minutes or longer after birth and saline solution used to induce abortion normally damages vital organs.
 La Benz has been temporarily suspended from performing abortions at the medical center.
 Each of the two charges carries a maximum penalty of up to five years in prison and up to $10,000 in fines.

House votes to extend rehab program

United Press International
WASHINGTON — A one-year, $427 million extension of federal alcohol and drug abuse programs has been overwhelmingly approved by the House.
 Before passing the bill 395-5 Tuesday, the House approved an amendment by Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, forbidding use of the money to pay the salary of any person who illegally uses drugs.
 Collins complained employees of the Drug Enforcement Administration were known to use drugs.
 A key objection raised to the bill's amendment was that it would allow cutting off the pay of a alleged drug user before conviction by a court.
