Restroom workers on strike

United Press International
HONOLULU — A strike by 7,700 government blue-collar workers forced the state Department of Education to order 32 schools to operate on a 2-hour daily schedule beginning Thursday because of unsanitary lavatories.

School superintendent Charles Clark said Wednesday the department was "experiencing problems in keeping school restrooms open," because of the lack of custodial services caused by the strike, called Monday by the United Public Workers union.

Clark said under the modified 2-hour day, students must report to school for general instruction and homework assignments. More schools might be added to the 2-hour schedule if restroom conditions there worsen, he said.

Included in the reduced schedules are 10 high schools and five intermediate schools. There are 28 public schools in the state.

Elsewhere trash is piled up on sidewalks, but residents have been able to get rid of their garbage by hauling it to any of three landfills.

La. voters play 'the name game'

United Press International
BATON ROUGE, La. — William Shakespeare could have learned a thing or two about what's in a name from None of the Above or Dr. X. He also would have learned a lot about Louisiana politics.

None of the Above is a candidate for governor. Haywood "Dr. X" Fair is seeking a third term on the Madison Parish police jury.

Louisiana candidates know bizarre names and nicknames translate to instant recognition and familiarity that can add up to extra votes.

That is why hundreds of politicians put their nicknames on election ballots — whether they're as common and obvious as "Eddie" or as bizarre as "Fly-Ro." The roster for this Saturday's statewide election has its share of strange names.

Aside from the commonplace short forms of given names, the nicknames on Saturday's ballots suggest occupations, describe physical characteristics, and often are humorous.

Some nicknames are used in lieu of long-unused formal names that might seem pretentious. Hence candidate for governor Edgerton Louis Henry becomes simply E.L. "Bubba" Henry. One of his opponents is Edgar C. "Sonny" Mouton.

Many nicknames simply are bizarre, such as:
—Stanley "Lolly Pop" Bazile, a candidate for constable in St. James Parish.
—Doyle "Popcorn" Scaife, of

Many, who is seeking the House seat of H.M. "Mud" of Coushatta.
—Leslie "Fly-Ro" James, didate for constable in Coupee Parish, home of Nolan "Chuck" Jarreau and "Cow" Jarreau.
—Harry J. "Soup" Kember White Castle, a candidate for House, is taking full advantage of his nickname. His TV ads also can of "Kember" soup, a familiar red and white label.

Although None of the Above is not a nickname, it is the example of the name in Louisiana politics. He is a known minor candidate for when he qualified for Luther Devine "L.D." Kember.

But when he legally changed his name to promote his campaign, he put a "None of the Above" slot on election ballot. But he gained instant national publicity he never could have bought.

The name change came go on the ballot, and the ruled it was deceptive, but the Above got his message across.

Haywood Fair has been twice to the Madison Parish Jury without a nickname of "Dr. X." Now many people him better as Dr. X, so he on the ballot as Haywood Fair.
