MSC groups to spending money

By KATHLEEN McELROY
Battalion Reporter

If they can find enough "friends," Memorial Student Center organizations will have an extra $40,000 to use for planning events.

The Board of Directors of the Enrichment Fund voted Saturday to set $40,000 as the goal of the first-year fund, the purpose of which is to solicit and handle contributions to MSC programs and committees.

This year's drive will end in August of next year.

The vote to set that figure for the goal — nine to eight — was close because some board members thought $40,000 was too low.

"We (the MSC) need a minimum of $30,000 for travel, a minimum of $20,000 for speakers, and a minimum of $20,000 for arts," said James Randolph, MSC student development specialist, in arguing that $100,000 should be the goal.

After the $40,000 goal was passed, Chairman Tom Fitzhugh, III — who voted for the lower figure — said, "This will give us enough meat to work on."

To get the money, the "Friends of the MSC" people will be asked to $25.

The original plan, developed by John Oeffinger, was for finance of the group, was from people who don't contribute to any other A&M organization.

The board finally decided to help from as many former students as possible, especially those heavy contributors.

"You won't discourage everyone's going to get money," said Bob Williams, a member of the board.

The best source of funds, who already give.

The board plans to use mail cycle to get funds, with the help of some student mail letters asking for contributions to former students. Every month, letters will be sent to those who don't respond the first time.

In March, the fund will have student-oriented efforts for individuals for money for the fund will need 1,600 contributions.

Money received for the fund can be put into one of three categories. They are: a fund for contributors, a fund to specify where the money is to be used.

Those who wish to contribute their money for a specific project or subject.

The third type of fund is a down fund in which the interest from the money can be used by the fund.
